EMPRESS LINER IS EXTENSIVELY DAMAGED PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS WIN WORLD'S BASEBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

"Bing" Miller Hero of Ninth Inning Rally

Right Fielder Crashes Out Two-base Hit to Send Simmons Home With Winning Run in Last Inning and Beat Chicago Cubs 3-2; "Mule" Haas Had Previously Tied Count With Home Run After Bishop Had Singled; Walberg and Ehmkke Pitch for A's.

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Oct. 14.—Rallying in the ninth inning to score three runs after trailing for eight innings, the Philadelphia Athletics won the world's baseball championship here today, defeating the Chicago Cubs, National League champions 3-2, in the fifth and final game.

SCULLIN IS TO FORM CABINET IN AUSTRALIA

Bruce Ministry, Defeated at Polls, Will Give Resignation Next Monday

McBourne, Oct. 14 (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters).—The Labor Party is assured of a good working majority in the new House of Representatives of Australia as a result of Saturday's general election. The latest estimate gives the Labor Party 44 seats, the Nationalists 16, Country Party 10, Independent Nationalists 3, Independent 1, and Country Progressive 1.

At a meeting to-day between the leaders of Australia's two chief political parties, Premier Stanley Bruce, head of the Nationalist Government, decided to resign his Cabinet in the resignation of his Cabinet to the Governor-General on Monday.

WITH A TWO-BAGGER
"Bing" Miller was the hero of the game as he was the two-bagger to right centre field that brought home A. Simmons with the winning run. After Simmons had crossed the plate and Miller had reached second, the remainder of the Athletics tore out on the field and packed in "Bing" on their shoulders.

RUBE GETS CREDIT
Rube Walberg, considered one of the most erratic pitchers in the leagues, got credit for the victory. He took up the burden in the fourth inning after the Cubs had got to Howard Ehmke for runs. For the remainder of the game Walberg had the Chicago team right on his hip, and they never threatened. Pat Malone worked the entire game for the Cubs, and he pitched a ball, but the rally in the ninth finished him. Up until the end of the eighth inning the Athletics had only to be able to garner three hits off him, while the Cubs had earned eight safeties off Ehmke and Walberg.

MacDonald Goes to Visit Niagara Falls

New York, Oct. 14.—Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain, had New York today and departed on a special train over the New York Central Railroad en route to Canada, where he will confer with Premier King. He will cross the border at Niagara Falls.

Great Britain May Send C. R. Buxton As Ambassador to Russia

London, Oct. 14.—According to The London Sunday Dispatch, Charles Buxton, Labor Member of the House of Commons, is almost certain to be the new Ambassador of Great Britain to Soviet Russia. He is a brother of Rt. Hon. Noel Buxton, Minister of Agriculture.

CITY RECEIVES BONUS ON GRAIN ELEVATOR PLAN

Following up a payment of $5,000 made to the city at the first of the month by another payment of $2,000 last week, the Panama Pacific Grain Terminals Limited have fulfilled current obligations in respect to the agreement under which the Ogden Point elevator was erected with city backing. The $5,000 shows as profit on the city's books, over and above interest requirements for the debenture holders. Revolutionary changes in the Canadian grain trade, now being studied, are expected to work to the material benefit of Pacific coast terminals and prospects for the Victoria concern were never brighter than at present, it is stated.

PHOTOS TAKEN

They faced the inevitable battery of cameras and smilingly posed for pictures while spectators applauded. Soon afterwards the Premier and his party boarded their train, which pulled out of the terminal at 9:30 o'clock.

CHEERS GIVEN
Just before the train pulled out of the station Sir Harry Armstrong cried: "Three routing cheers for the Prime Minister," and led the crowd in a vociferous demonstration to the booming of flashlights.

Speed Queen of Pacific Resting On Jagged Rocks

Above is shown the palatial Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Canada as she rests to-day on a shelf of rock just off McIlwaine Point, near Albert Head, after running aground yesterday at noon. With the receding tide she took a list to starboard of two or three degrees. In the dim background to the left is seen the Dominion hydrographic survey ship Lillooet and the tug Kyquoot. Barges for lightering the Canada's oil supply can be seen alongside the steamer.

WINNIPEG FLIER NOISE OF BOYS LOSES LIFE IN ANGERSMAN AND CRASH OF PLANE DEATH FOLLOWS

Pilot J. H. Templer Dies of Injuries; Two Passengers Are Hurt

Airman Unable to Bring Commercial Machine Out of Spin

Winnipeg, Oct. 14.—Thrown into a spin as he banked sharply for a turn, preparatory to landing, J. H. Templer, youthful pilot for the Transcanada Airways Company, failed, despite a desperate effort, to right his aeroplane and the machine crashed on prairie land west of this city near the Stevens Aerodrome late yesterday.

Templer, who was twenty-four years old and a former resident of Burford, Ont., was fatally injured, while his two passengers, William Burton and Kenneth Roy Macdonald, each sustained a fracture of one leg and severe internal injuries.

Unconscious, the pilot and his passengers were taken from the wreckage of the plane by motorists who had witnessed the crash. Templer died on the way to a physician's office. An ambulance was rushed from the city and Burton and Macdonald were taken to a hospital.

Burton, twenty-two years old, and Macdonald, twenty-eight, are both residents of Winnipeg. Burton's mother is believed to be a resident of Vancouver.

Brackendall, arrested by provincial police, it is stated, will be brought to Vancouver for hearing before Magistrate H. O. Alexander this evening.

INQUEST TO BE HELD
The body of the boy was removed to the city morgue, where an autopsy will be held.

According to hospital reports, the boy was sprayed about the head, chest and arms with shotgun pellets. An inquest will be held here, police say.

Cost of Repairs Now Estimated At $250,000

R.M.S. Empress of Canada Will Be First Ocean-going Passenger Liner To Be Drydocked in Esquimalt Graving Basin, Now Prepared for Reception of Ship.

Damage estimated at $250,000 was sustained by the C.P.R. liner Empress of Canada, Capt. E. Griffiths, when she drove hard ashore in a dense fog on Sunday noon at McIlwaine Point, just south of Albert Head, almost within sight of port. She was trying to reach William Head quarantine station to obtain pratique. Her last port of call was San Francisco.

All the resources of the Canadian Pacific Railway system and the Pacific Salvage Company are to-day directed towards the salvage of the speed queen of the transpacific fleet which came to grief so sensationally as she was on the point of completing her 10,000-mile voyage from Southampton, England.

The 21,517-ton passenger ship is now resting on the reefs from bow to almost amidships and the salvors are of the opinion that she will not be released as easily as at first anticipated.

Before the vessel can be floated the holes that have been punctured by the jagged rocks in her hull will have to be patched and the holds pumped out to release the weight caused by the pressure of water which found its way into the forward compartments.

This opinion was definitely expressed to-day by the salvors working on the ship.

First Trouble For Empress Liners In Over Twenty Years

The mishap to the crack liner Empress of Canada yesterday breaks a record of over twenty years without trouble to Empress boats in British Columbia waters. In all the years the Empresses have been sailing out of Victoria and Vancouver they have been remarkably free from even minor mishaps. The previous mishap was to the Empress of China and occurred in Vancouver harbor when she was alongside the wharf. Due to an open sea-cock she gradually filled with water and sank. There were no passengers on board at the time. She was raised by the old steamer Salvor with Capt. George Bushby in charge of salvaging operations at that time. Little damage was done and as there was no drydock in Vancouver she was brought to Esquimalt where she was dried out. Her electrical plant suffered the most but the liner was soon back in the service none the worse for the mishap.

REEVE ADMIRES VETERANS' WORK

Saanich Leader Comments Poppy Sale of Armistice Committee

Is Much Impressed By Visit to Red Cross Shop

"The Red Cross Workshop caused me greater surprise than I can express," said Reeve Crouch, following his recent visit to the Red Cross Shop, where he made a tour of the work and gave a substantial order for wreaths for the Municipal Hall.

"One of the first things to catch my eye was a park swing of fine workmanship," the Reeve continued. "It is just what we require for the Reynolds Street playground, and it was a pleasure for me to place an order for four on behalf of Saanich Municipal Council."

"It was my first visit to the workshop and I can say with all sincerity that I regret the fact that all men holding public office should see and know the great variety and excellent quality of the work turned out by disabled men, and I shall certainly advise my colleagues on the council to pay a visit."

"I was amazed and pleased to know that woodwork, basketwork and wire and metalwork of all kinds is done here. And if anyone requires proof of the workers' skill he will find it in the magnificent oak lectern which is being made for Christ Church Cathedral."

CREATIONS OF BEAUTY

"The Armistice poppies and wreaths which are being made by disabled men who are unable to perform heavier work, are creations of beauty of which any worker might be proud, and the wreaths which will be placed in the Municipal Hall, at Royal Oak, will serve to remind us of the sacrifice made and our duty to those who returned from the struggle."

"I cannot too highly commend the work of the Armistice Period Committee. By providing schoolchildren with poppies, whether they can contribute or not, arranging for Sunday, November 3, to be observed as Preparation Day in places of worship, and making the wreaths placed on the Cenotaph by friends of 'absent comrades' serve a double purpose by having them placed on the graves of sailors and soldiers in Ross Bay and Royal Oak cemeteries, after November 11."

"Armistice is given an added significance and the sacredness of the occasion is brought home to us with increased force."

Pro Patria Branch Entertains Inmates of Home With Varied Programme

An excellent evening's entertainment was provided the inmates of the Old Men's Home by the entertainment committee of the Pro Patria branch of the Canadian Legion on Friday.

A lengthy and interesting programme consisting of songs by Comrades Haines, Cobgett, Weatherall, Crawford, and Brook; violin selections by Comrade Linton Quail; clarinet solos by Comrade Winterburne; piano selections by Miss Roberts Quail; banjo selections by Mrs. Schofield; dances by Miss Frances Merryfield and Miss Lily McFee was greatly enjoyed.

Comrade F. Merryfield gave a splendid exhibition of sleight-of-hand and disappearing tricks. Comrade G. Schofield was the able accompanist. Each item was well received.

At the close, refreshments were served by members of the Women's Auxiliary.

The inmates of the Home cordially thanked the entertainers and the committee for providing them with such an enjoyable evening, and expressed the hope of another visit from them.

Comrade T. Davies, chairman of the committee, presided over the gathering, and extended the best wishes of the committee to the inmates.

"What do you think of Life Insurance?"

"WHEN John was with us, I fought against Life Insurance. It seemed such a slow, unexciting way to invest money. I wanted a new house, a new car, fine clothes and the things that money could buy . . .

"But John insisted. He took on more Life Insurance than I ever dreamed of. Sometimes we had to make little sacrifices because of it. And John would explain how large an estate would be necessary to provide an income for the children and myself.

"Now, since John has been taken from us, how bitterly have I regretted my stubborn opposition . . . how deeply grateful have I been for his living forethought which, even in spite of my own efforts, now protects us and provides for our every need.

"It is a fact, my dear, that if every wife knew what every widow knows, every man would carry sufficient Life Insurance."

POOL SELLS MORE WHEAT IN BRITAIN

London, Oct. 14 (Canadian Press)—The wheat situation shows signs of improvement. The London office of the Canadian Wheat Pool reports heavier purchases of Canadian wheat during the last week than for a month past.

"It is only a question of time and patience," the office commented in connection with congestion and lack of buying.

Heavy crops on the continent of Europe and the great crop of Argentine wheat, which is finding its way to Britain without delay, created an abnormal situation.

Advices here show roughly 28,000,000 bushels of wheat are still available in Argentina. Liverpool is jammed with Argentine wheat, which is chiefly in the hands of consumers and speculators.

Canadian Wheat Pool representatives, however, expect that from now on the demand for Canadian wheat will improve.

Constipation Is Starting Point For Variety Of Ailments

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

The inability to cleanse the system regularly of the by-products of digestion has long been associated with various mental disturbances and with many other peculiar reactions.

Most physiologists are agreed that it is impossible to say just what is regular or correct for all individuals. Human beings vary, some being comfortable with movements of the bowels once a week, others every three or four days, some daily. A few physicians insist on several actions of the bowels each day for everyone, but this point of view is not accepted by the majority.

Dr. Ira S. Wile has made a study of the relationship of accumulation of by-products in the body to human behavior. He points out that not infrequently the child's reaction is bad because it has learned from his family that it must have activity daily and it resents forcing. In other instances, the by-products have been so irritated by the use of cathartics and laxatives that the mind is constantly occupied with the process of evacuation.

Thus Wile feels convinced that it is necessary to determine in every case what is regular or normal for that case. He feels also that too much attention is just as bad as too little attention at all.

The physiologists know that there are many factors which will influence action of the intestinal tract. The taking of food or any other irritation high up in the tract will begin movements downward. Anger and fear will cause unusual activity. In most instances eighteen hours are required for the passage of material from the mouth to evacuation.

Like a story from the Arabian Nights is the description of the miniature model of the Royal York Hotel, shown at the Toronto Exhibition this fall. The model is valued at over $300,000 and in its construction there were utilized more than 15,000 Ellis faultless quality diamonds. They were mounted on a framework composed

RHODES SCHOLAR IS TO BE NAMED

Vancouver, Oct. 14.—Plans for the selection of the Rhodes scholar to represent British Columbia at Oxford for the year 1930 are now under way, according to D. N. Nicholas, 422 West Pender Street, Vancouver, provincial secretary of the Rhodes Scholarship Trust. It is understood the 1930 Rhodes scholar for British Columbia will be chosen in December.

Under a new rule to take effect in 1930, Rhodes scholars may be allowed either to postpone their third year, returning to Oxford for it after a period of work in their own countries, or may spend their third year in post-graduate work at any university in Great Britain. In special cases this rule may be extended to allow Rhodes scholars to take their third year at some university on the continent of Europe, in the service of the British Empire, or in the United States.

In no case, however, will Rhodes scholars be allowed to take their third year in a university of their own country.

Under the general regulations a Rhodes scholarship is tenable at the University of Oxford, and may be held for three years.

Candidates eligible for Canadian Rhodes scholarships must be British subjects with at least five years' residence in Canada, and unmarried. Each must have passed his nineteenth, but not his twenty-fifth birthday on October 1 of the year for which he is elected. Specifications also require two years' university training in Canada.

Ross Tolmie, 1929 president of the Alma Mater Society of the University of British Columbia, was selected as Rhodes scholar from this province in 1929.

Ross Tolmie, 1929 president of the Alma Mater Society of the University of British Columbia, was selected as Rhodes scholar from this province in 1929.

White Russians Protest to League On Massacre

Tokio, Oct. 14.—A Rengo News Agency dispatch from Harbin, Manchuria, yesterday reported a crowd of White Russians had staged a demonstration before the German consulate there and demanded that the League of Nations be informed officially of the massacre of 200 White Russians by Soviet forces near Harbin on October 1. The incident took place north of Manchuria, on the Manchurian-Siberian frontier.

An Associated Press dispatch from Harbin October 8 said Chinese and foreign sources had given support to White Russian allegations that 140 men, women and children had been slain by Soviet raiders near Harbin. The Harbin demonstration was made before the German consulate because that Government is representing the interests of China in Russia and the interests of Russia in China while the two Governments are at loggerheads over the Chinese seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

A banquet will be given the guests and at 8 o'clock a public reception will be held, when "Dad" Quick will be presented with birthday presents. Sunday afternoon "Dad" Quick and his party will be taken to Grouse Mountain by the executive officers.

THE EMPRESS OF CANADA

THERE WILL BE WIDESPREAD REGRET that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's palatial Empress of Canada ran aground near Albert Head yesterday, and a cordial hope that she will be refloated with as little damage as possible. Her misadventure is all the more unfortunate because she had just been reconitioned and re-engined in Great Britain and was heading for this port to resume her service as flagship of the company's fleet on the Pacific.

This accident to the Canada, incidentally, is a forceful reminder of the Dominion Government's wisdom in building the great drydock at Esquimalt. The nearest dock elsewhere in the waters large enough to accommodate the giant liner is at Bremerton, in Puget Sound, to which the business of repairing the damage no doubt would have gone under other circumstances.

It is fitting at this time to congratulate the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company upon the infrequency of accidents to its Pacific fleet. The record is clear of major accidents, which alone is a tribute to the seamanship of the men in its service.

While the salvaging and repairing of the Canada may be a costly business, the company will derive some satisfaction from the fact that the mishap was not accompanied by loss of life.

AUSTRALIA'S CHOICE

LABOR'S VICTORY AT THE GENERAL elections in Australia on Saturday appears to have been a decisive one. The count is by no means complete yet; but latest advices indicate that Mr. James H. Scullin, the opposition leader, will be the next Prime Minister with a total following of forty-four. Against him will be sixteen Nationalists, ten members of the Country Party, and one Country Progressive.

For the rest, there are three so-called Independent Nationalists, former Premier Hughes and Messrs. Marks and Maxwell, the insurgents who caused the downfall of the Government in the Labor arbitration vote. There also is one Independent. Even if Mr. Scullin must rely upon his own Labor followers, therefore, he still will have a clear majority over all of thirteen.

One important point to be remembered, however, is that although Labor apparently will be in unchallenged control of the House of Representatives, it will have to beware of the Nationalist majority in the Senate. At present the Upper House is composed of twenty-four Nationalists, five members of the Country Party, and seven Laborites. The nature of the new Government's legislation consequently no doubt will be influenced considerably by this circumstance.

The result of the contest apparently occasions no surprise in Australia. The Bruce Government has been in office since the elections last year with a very slender majority. The Prime Minister and his Nationalists numbered only twenty-nine, compared with thirty-one Laborites; the thirteen Country Party members, however, joined forces with the Nationalists to provide Mr. Bruce with his majority to carry on.

Now that the Labor Party has been given a mandate from the Australian people, it can be assumed that there will be no change in the administration of the Commonwealth Arbitration and Industrial Peace Act. The Bruce Government sought to relinquish its responsibility in this matter by turning it over to the various states to administer. It was on the vote to repeal the Act that the Ministry was defeated and decided to appeal to the country. The verdict appears to be a decisive one.

WESTERN CANADA LIVESTOCK AND DAIRYING

STRIKING ATTENTION HAS BEEN drawn of late to the progress British Columbia is making in the livestock industry. This province was the only one last year to register an increase in every branch of livestock holdings. The progress in the beef cattle industry has been particularly outstanding, and this activity is becoming increasingly significant. There has been a consistent increase every year since 1920 in holdings of beef cattle, and between 1925 and 1928 an increase of more than thirty-three per cent. in the number recorded. Yet the industry is as yet but in the early stages of its growth, the possibilities, from the range standpoint, in the interior of the province being enormous. Government experts and practical beef-raisers are predicting that before long the centre of Canadian beef cattle production will be west of the Rocky Mountains, where the encroachment of wheat-growers is not as much to be feared as in the Prairie Provinces. The cow country of British Columbia is just coming into its own, several of the numerous herds ranging there being of more than 5,000 head.

Recently, it will be recalled, with the object of encouraging, protecting and developing the beef cattle industry in this province, the British Columbia Beef Cattle Growers' Association was formed by leading beef cattle men in the territory. The step was urged and hastened in order to have a strictly beef cattle men's association for British Columbia to link up with the National Beef Cattlemen's Association organized in western Canada, which is expected to be an aggressive and strong factor for the promotion of the beef cattle industry in the western provinces. Prosperity in the industry is by no means confined to British Columbia, but extends across the Rockies, and no interruption in the growth of western Canadian herds is apprehended under present circumstances. It is distinctly on the upgrade, its value in 1928 being estimated at $60,000,000, which constitutes a record.

Two years previously it was only $49,000,000. It is also of significant interest that western Canada is exhibiting a marked recovery in the dairying industry, and production of creamery butter in the Prairie Provinces in the current year is considerably greater than in 1928, according to the Federal Department of Agriculture. During the first five months of the year, receipts of cream at Alberta creameries showed an increase of eighteen per cent., as compared with receipts during the same months of 1928, and all dairy production increased more than thirteen per cent. The quantity of creamery butter production in Saskatchewan in the same period was 3,831,236 pounds, compared with 2,082,620 in the same period of 1928, an increase of eighty-four per cent. Manitoba creamery butter production for the period of 1929 was 3,507,849 pounds, as compared with 2,608,828 pounds in 1928, an increase of 34.5 per cent.

The increase in the production of butter, of course, is not surprising. It is a matter of record that in good crop years on the prairies the dairying industry declines and we are obliged to import large quantities of butter to meet our own domestic requirements. This year, it is confidently expected, will reveal butter production very largely in excess of that of 1928, with imports correspondingly less.

THEY FOUND OUT

IF COMMUNISTS ON THIS CONTINENT who tell us that the Russian people are much better off than we are would go to the land of the Soviet and investigate conditions for themselves, they would be sadly disillusioned.

This experiment has been tried by two miners from the Tilmanstone colliery in Kent, England, who toured Russia thoroughly at the invitation and expense of the colliery management. They have returned, and no doubt the story they have told has dampened the ardor of others among their number who had it firmly fixed in their minds that Russia was the "Promised Land."

One of the "tourists," Mr. W. Roome, said: "When we asked a Russian family to sing one of their national songs, they said they had nothing to sing about. One person told us that if they could come to England, they would be satisfied to live in the workhouse."

The housing accommodation was very bad, and in some cases families lived and slept in one room. There were many thousands of unemployed in Moscow. Sanitation was dreadful, and there were flies by the million.

Describing a visit to a mine, Mr. Roome remarked: "On our way through the village we were shown shacks which used to house the miners in the old days. The officials who were conducting us through the village told us that they were kept thus standing as a reminder of the people of bygone times, but on going a little farther, we saw exactly the same shacks occupied by miners, thereby leading me to believe that they took us to be green."

Mr. Roome said he formed the opinion that a good deal of what he saw had been staged for the benefit of the delegation. He was taken round one of the rest houses where miners take their annual holiday. He asked if the peasants were also allowed a holiday. He was told that they were if they paid their union contribution. "We asked how many peasants there were in the home, and were told none, so we thought a good deal."

The men were accompanied by Mr. R. Southam, a schoolmaster, who was shocked at the poverty, filth, low wages, food scarcity, bad housing and general inefficiency. He saw in Moscow, he told an audience of miners, "such terrible sights of poverty as are almost indescribable." Streets were lined with thousands of beggars, who came into restaurants to gather scraps, and even to pick bones left on plates. Everything was rationed for bread and sugar. Even in the officers' mess in which he dined as a guest the food was so bad that both he and one of his companions were ill for some days.

The men employed at the Tilmanstone colliery, by the way, participate in a scheme under which their leaders share in the responsibility of management. But some of the extremists continued to be discontented, so the owners hit upon the idea of paying the expenses of two men to visit Russia and come back and report on what they discovered. The condition upon which the two men took the trip, incidentally, was that if Kent compared unfavorably with the Soviet country, they would leave the colliery and take their families to Russia. It is safe to say there will be no rush to go.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

TWO HEADS
The Toronto Star

Chief of Police Draper will visit England, and while there will consult with his old war leader, General Byng, now at the head of the London police. It is well. And while there he will probably hear some of those speeches in the park and observe the interference of the police, whose job is not to prevent speech, but to see that there is no disturbance.

QUEBEC CITADEL
The Montreal Herald

The Citadel and fortifications at Quebec were constructed over 100 years ago according to plans approved by the Duke of Wellington. The work, including the vice-regal residence and other adjuncts, cost the British taxpayer $45,000,000. The Citadel is now obsolete and the fortifications crumbling. From a military point of view both are useless. Hence, there will be general approval of the announcement just made by Premier King that it is the Government's intention to see that the ancient walls and fortifications are preserved. It was estimated in 1925 that the cost of restoration would amount to $425,000. We do not know if the $250,000 since spent on the restoration of the Governor-General's quarters was included in this estimate. Probably not.

Half a million dollars is a lot to pay. Yet it is little in comparison with the original cost, little in comparison even to its value as a tourist attraction, and certainly will be counted little in comparison with the value by future generations for whom this heritage of early days will be preserved intact.

Loose Ends

What probably happened at Rapidan Camp—and what didn't—Mr. Tunney tells of the spiritual side of prize fighting—Mr. Chaney reveals his secrets—and the British-nick is altogether unrecognizable.

By H. B. W.

WRITERS OF IMAGINATION have had a feast of good copy lately in the visit of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald to the fishing lodge of President Hoover, in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, beside Rapidan Creek. Of all these writings perhaps the most colorful came from The Vancouver Province, which almost sobbed aloud as it thought about the leaders of the world's two greatest democracies settling world problems before a crackling fire of pitchy pine logs. "What manner of conversation passed between these two world leaders as they sat before the open fire at Rapidan?" asks The Province. "Did they talk of naval pacts and treaties and the like? Did the political and national strife melt away as they gazed into the glowing coals of the fire?"

THIS HAS A splendid sound and will make jumps rise in the throats of many innocent yokels. But I have enough faith in the essential human simplicity of Mr. MacDonald and Mr. Hoover to think it is all wet. I have enough faith in them to believe that, once out beside his purring trout stream, Mr. Hoover began to explain with many gestures and much pacing up and down the room, how the six-pound fish got away because his reel was tangled; while Mr. MacDonald bored the company to tears by outlining play for play on the hearthrug with the aid of a poker, the match in which he scored an 85 for the first and last time in his life.

MACDONALD, SAYS The Province, "who is said to make a hobby of astronomy would likely have a good opportunity on his way to bed to glance at the October heavens. If so, he would have found Aquarius shining with unusual brightness, which might indicate good luck on all things pertaining to the water, including the limitation of navies. Happily in the heavens, Mars, suggestive of bloodshed and strife, appeared not at all." A better guess is that as Mr. MacDonald stumbled through the darkness to his cabin he wished to goodness Mr. Hoover would supply his guests with lanterns and show some of his famed engineering skill in smoothing out the paths; and he probably reflected that while Americans certainly know how to fry the fat chickens of Virginia, they have never learned how to make tea fit for a British palate.

THERE AMONG the pine trees, under the star-spangled sky," says The Province, "Mr. MacDonald was given an opportunity to pause and to invite the soul before plunging into the great work of his mission." Instead of which, I have no doubt, Mr. MacDonald went to sleep thinking that summer camps are all right, but wishing fervently that the President had thought to give him a city bed and mattress. Anyway, I hope it was so. From human beings like that we may expect to get some action at last on the very human problem of Anglo-American relations.

WHEN I was a boy we used to have an Encyclopedia Britannica in twenty-four massive volumes, which stood on a special bookshelf, from which they were taken about twice a year. Apparently they were bought because an encyclopedia and an album of family portraits were regarded as part of the essential equipment of a respectable home in latter Victorian times. Anyway, no one ever dreamed of reading them. They were useful, though, when you wanted to write a schoolboy essay on Oliver Cromwell or the teak industry of Indo-China. You could copy out your whole essay, insert a few grammatical errors to give the result an air of authenticity, and the teacher would give you high marks. The Encyclopedia Britannica is maintained in countless homes. I have no doubt, on these same comfortable terms, and except in public libraries most of its pages are never cut in the course of an entire life time.

ALL THIS is going to be changed. The Encyclopedia Britannica has published a new issue which will revolutionize the whole business of encyclopedia making, and much of the world's knowledge as well. It has suddenly blossomed forth upon an untold world as a human document which anyone may read. Literary men of the last century may shake their heads at this jarring up of an almost sacred work, but what is the good of an encyclopedia so static that one fears to approach it?

THE NEW Encyclopedia is built on entirely new lines. When editor-in-chief James Louis Garvin, longtime editor of The London Observer, wanted an article on prize fighting he got James Joseph Tunney to write it, and Mr. Tunney, as you would expect, writes earnestly about the ethics and spiritual value of boxing. When Mr. Garvin came to the movies he sought the counsel of Lon Chaney, who obliged by telling, among other things, how he makes himself look like a negro by inserting rubber cigar holders into his nostrils and painting his face black; and adds that a brunette may be made to appear blonde if her hair is sprinkled with ground brass powder.

HENRY LOUIS MENCKEN informs the readers of the Encyclopedia that "The English seldom devise anything as pungent as rubber-neck, ticket-scalper, lame-duck, pork barrel and bootlegger. Such exhortations to honesty are produced in the United States every day, and large numbers of them come into universal use and gradually take on a literary flavor." Irene Castle MacLaughlin, writing on ballroom dancing says: "the fox trot is typically American rhythm." Abbe Niles fixes the father of "blues" and the grandfather of all jazz as William Christopher Handy, colored, who started writing such things back in 1910.

THE LATE Marshal Foch says of the "moral of soldiers in the Great War," if from a group here and there came a song or a noisy demonstration, it was from young soldiers going out to the front for the first time. The others remained impassive, silent, gloomy and their eyes gave token of the cold energy, and the spirit of a savage resolve on which they had fallen back." Professor Wilcox of Cornell, reveals that the New England States, despite their saintly reputation, have more divorces per marriage than other states. And so on. The new edition is packed with so much interesting human information that it may achieve a record in the long history of encyclopedias and actually be read, for it is taking knowledge to the people instead of trying to take them to knowledge, an impossible task.

RE-HALLOWEEN

To the Editor:—May I encroach upon your valuable space for the purpose of calling attention to those passages in this festive time is fast approaching?

As a reminder of the fact I have already been made the victim of either a senseless prank or a sneak thief, who is not worthy to be classed as a good citizen. Between Thursday evening and Friday morning a tubular iron gate at the side entrance to my residence was taken off the hinge and has not been seen since. A tubular iron gate of this description, interwoven with wire, with an ornamental top and painted green, somewhat the worse for wear, is not of much value except in its proper place, so that the intellect of the party who took same may be judged according to the value of the article taken and the meanness thereof.

This matter has been reported to the police and should anyone know of the whereabouts of this gate so that same can be recovered, I would be glad if they would kindly communicate with the city police or with the writer. Perhaps the party who had the nerve to purloin the gate will have the nerve to utilize same in the face of this letter.

If, however, it is the result of over-anticipation of the coming event by young people, there is yet time for parents to warn their children against wanton damage and destruction of property and sometimes loss which may otherwise be prevented.

This Island should be the bulb market of Canada, and this could be very easily accomplished if we really intend to put our backs into this important work. If we realize our advantages in this respect and give up sitting back and grousing over everything, what a wonderfully prosperous place this Vancouver Island of ours could be made.

"Rome was not built in a day," but if a few people started digging in and really making up their minds to go thoroughly and earnestly into the business in a small way at first, they would not only fill the local market (which will take some time), but will also have the rest of the ever-increasing Dominion market to cater for. All we want is quantities, made up by small growers. It is volume of business which counts to-day.

Could not our service clubs and other organizations invite those who know the bulb industry to give a few speeches and facts about bulb raising of an informative character? It should not be hard to learn, as many amateurs have met with great success. It can be done if a few really earnest workers make up their minds to go in for this profitable and increasing industry in a thorough and systematic manner. It has been done elsewhere, why not here?

METAL TOP BECOMES WINDSHIELD FOR RUMBLE SEAT RIDERS

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 14.—A metal top coupe convertible into an open sport roadster is the invention of B. B. Ellerbeck of this city after six months of study and design. The invention is designed to allow motorists to drive with the top lowered for the summer, or to obtain protection of a metal top coupe when winter comes.

This convertible feature is gained by dropping the top partly into the body, the forward portion of the roof extending above the body and serving as a windshield for the rumble seat. A transverse window is placed in this part of the top.

The top is pushed down into the body against the action of a cushioning spring under the pivotal connection at each side. When the top is down it has the same backward tilt as the forward windshield, giving the rumble seat occupants forward vision but protecting them from excessive drafts.

When the top is up and the door windows raised—for winter use—the car is transformed into a coupe, conforming in appearance with modern body lines.

HAS CONVENTIONAL SHAPE

"There are three fundamental features which make this a practical construction," says Ellerbeck.

"First, the top is only partially housed in the body when lowered. Thus the top may be entirely conventional in shape and elegant in appearance.

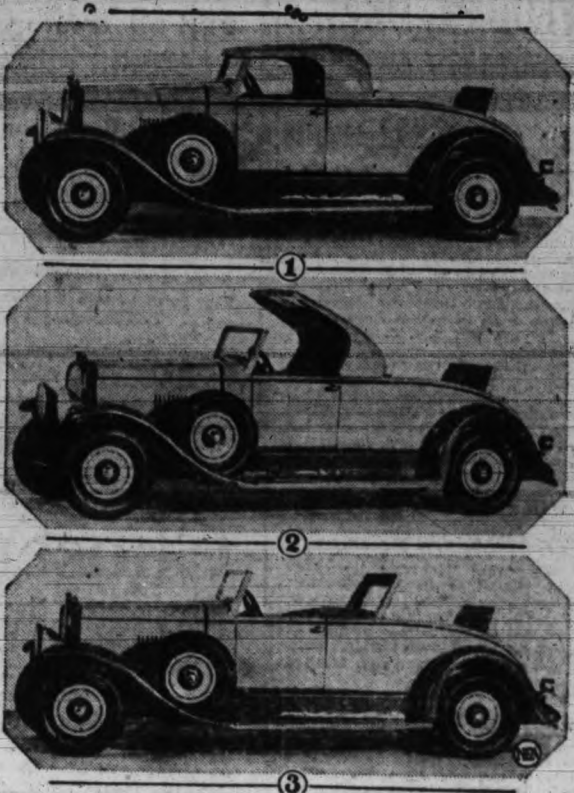

"Second, the lower edges of the top are flanged outward, this flange pressing up against a rubber strip to make the job waterproof and rattlerproof, and also in allowing proper rotational clearance between the top and the forward edge of the deck surface.

"Third, the pivotal connections between the top and body allow both rotational and linear movement of the top, therefore allowing it to be properly positioned when lowered.

LASTS AS LONG AS CAR

"The idea of making the forward part of the top with a window in it, and allowing this portion to serve as a deck windshield, also is a practical feature of getting a practical construction."

The inventor also points out that a metal top will last as long as the body.

By throwing back the metal top of this convertible coupe, as pictures show, we may have an open roadster with windshield protection for those in back. It is the invention of B. B. Ellerbeck of Salt Lake City.

and not be liable to ruin as quickly as foldable cloth tops. Further, a metal top is lined just the same as any coupe and is snug and warm during severe weather. Yet the top may be lowered in a few seconds and just as easily as a deck seat is thrown open, with the result that the visibility and airiness of the uncovered roadster is obtained.

The top is supported by springs, which may either be coil or leaf. Thus the weight is cushioned and operation is practically effortless.

Khaki Troops Dull At Palace Compared With Scarlet Guards

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times London, Oct. 14.—The Lincoln and the Sherwoods are sharing the honor of mounting guards at the Royal Palaces while the Household troops are doing their annual field training.

These two line battalions perform their new duties smartly, but are at a disadvantage from the spectacular point of view, their dull and uninteresting khaki being a poor substitute for the scarlet tunics and baskin which every visitor to London hopes to see.

The Bank of England guard is also provided by these fine units.

Old Guardsmen, watching the sentries outside the Palace, complain that the linesmen lack some of the little quirks and flourishes of the Guards' ceremonial. But why should they have it? The Chelsea drill experts would like to mould the whole army to their pattern, but the line is entitled to a little individuality.

London Council To Add $3,000,000 Wing To County Hall

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times London, Oct. 14.—It is hoped to begin early next year on the delayed work of completing the new London County Council Hall by the addition of the east wing.

Motives of economy had stopped the work before the war, and commitments on housing, bridges, and other schemes have since added to the delay. Now the new wing, which is to cost £600,000, will find a place in the employment programme at present before the country.

The south side of the Thames between Westminster and Blackfriars Bridge has been regarded as a blot on the landscape since the completion of the Embankment on the north side, but with the completed County Hall and the new station to take the place of Charing Cross, there is hope that the demand for an entirely new aspect over the whole stretch will become too insistent to be resisted.

For years the County Hall has been spoilt by having one of its wings crippled; a splendid frontage runs abruptly into an anti-climax of old sheds and hoardings. The new wing will include a conference hall and a movable screen which will enable the judges of reels to do their work without having to go to a theatre.

The architect responsible for the completion of the work of the late Ralph Knott will be Ernest Collins, who was a friend of Mr. Knott in their schooldays at the City of London School and, later, a colleague in the same office.

Mechanized Units Feature Manoeuvres Of British Army

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times London, Oct. 14.—The final and most important phase of army training has begun on Salisbury Plain. In the two War Office exercises, the two experimental infantry brigades (the sixth and seventh), the former from the Aldershot command and the latter from the southern command, were with other forces engaged "in action," and on the results achieved further important decisions on the future policy of mechanization depend.

To build up a highly mobile force around the core of a central armored force and to define its exact composition is the aim of the general staff. Naturally, opinions differ. It is contended by some that the number of tanks required to support such a central force should be twice or even three times as great as the number of armored cars in the force, in addition to mechanized artillery, aircraft, battery, field company of engineers and a mobile infantry battalion. Others would have fewer tanks and more mechanized infantry battalions.

At the present time the experimental infantry brigade is made up of three battalions of infantry, one light tank battalion and one mechanized light mortar battery. The infantry battalions are not yet mechanized, but their machine gun companies are carried on motor vehicles, some of which are armored. This week the new anti-tank weapon—a special form of gun carried in a baby tank—will also be brought into use. The cavalry attached to each brigade will have eleven Austin cars attached for scouting purposes. Other experiments will be made with the mechanized 3.7-inch howitzer battery.

This may be a picture of your future garage. While it occupies the ground space of only a two car garage, this tower serves as a parking space for ten automobiles. The tower is a reinforced concrete shell within which are ten platforms that move up and down on an endless chain in such a way that two platforms are always at the ground level. The platforms are operated on the same principle as a self-operating elevator. Upper left—The exterior of the original tower garage which has been built at Sandusky, Ohio. Upper right—A mechanical model showing the way in which the platforms operate. Lower—Plymouth car on one of the platforms.

He has always been troubled with constipation, has seldom had a natural movement, and has been terribly cross this last week. He has watery-looking pimples on his face, hands and feet but not on his body. Would they be caused from his stomach?"

Spectacle Makers Recall Advance From Days of "Black Art"

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times
London, Oct. 5.—The Optical Congress and Trade Exhibition at the Northampton Polytechnic Institute, London, has been organized in celebration of the Spectacle Makers' Company's tercentenary.
That ancient livery company received its charter from Charles I in 1629, and this original charter on vellum, with its great seals, will be one of the exhibits at the exhibition.
Something of the progress of optical science will be illustrated in the exhibition, but evidently history does not record the beginnings of the optician's craft. It began somewhere among the "black arts," but developed into a respectable science through the work of Newton, Dolland, Wollaston, Young and Airy.
It was Sir George Airy who invented the cylindrical lens used to correct astigmatism, and Fuller (of Ipswich) devised the machinery to grind it, but it was not till nearly seventy years later that this discovery was brought into any considerable practical use. The reproductions of opticians' shops as they were in this country 150 and fifty years ago will show visitors to the exhibition something of the external changes in the craft, but the workshop outfits of to-day, the research apparatus and the microscopic developments mark the real advances in the work.
Many interesting topics, largely of a technical character will be discussed at the congress held in association with the exhibition. One of the speakers will be Dr. O. D. Rasmussen, who will talk on optometry in China. He has practiced in China for some years and is the only European who ever examined and prescribed for the eyes of the Chinese Emperor. Dr. Rasmussen is disposed to claim that the Chinese were the first opticians. Demonstrations will be given of new test charts, optical-glass making, and of the uses of various new instruments and the proceedings generally will be presided over by Sir Osborn Holmden.

An official of the exhibition stated that the craft of the optician has been greatly extended in quite recent years. Thirty-five years ago there were not more than 500 opticians in this country; to-day the number of practicing opticians is over 3,000. Since the appointment of health officers to the elementary schools, spectacle-making has greatly expanded. Ten per cent of the school-children have been found to need treatment for visual defects. Defective eyesight is more common among girls than boys and increases in the higher age groups. Another element in the expansion of the opticians' business has been the granting by many approved societies of ophthalmic treatment as an additional benefit under the National Health Insurance Act. No fewer than 11,500,000 insured persons are members of societies which have included this benefit in their schemes.
Auxiliary to Meet—The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Army and Navy Veterans will hold their regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30, at the home of the president, 1122 Meats Street.

BOY DIES FROM GUNSHOT WOUND

Bernard Brown of Duncan Killed Yesterday in Hunting Accident
Special to The Times
Duncan, Oct. 14.—Bernard Brown, sixteen, second son of Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Brown of Duncan was shot yesterday afternoon by his own shotgun and died three hours afterwards in the King's Daughters' Hospital.
The lad had been hunting on Maple Bay Mountain, south of Duncan, with Tony Hilliard, eighteen. When on his way home at 5.30 o'clock he slipped on a wet rock. His shotgun discharged as he fell and the full load lodged in his left side.
Hilliard stopped a passing motorist and the injured youth was taken to hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Baird and Dr. H. P. Swan.
Brown was well known and popular in Duncan. For some years he had been a Daily Times carrier in the district. In addition to his parents, he is survived by three brothers and two sisters.

STATE HEALTH INSURANCE IS UNDER REVIEW

Foresters of Nanaimo District Will Advocate British Plan
Special to The Times
Nanaimo, Oct. 14.—An enthusiastic gathering of Foresters, representative of all the Courts of Nanaimo and district, held on Friday evening, Oct. 11, at the P.D.C.R., gave an instructive address on state health insurance, from the British Act, and adaptable to the requirements of the Province.
The speaker went into full detail as to the history of health insurance as in vogue in Belgium and Germany, carried out on military lines, then finally discussed the greatest, democratic and most successful health insurance act in existence, brought into effect by the Lloyd George Government in 1912, in which the A.O.F. experience and tables were adopted.
FAVOR BRITISH PLAN
After the lengthy address a general discussion took place, in which leading citizens took part, and finally a resolution was adopted that the Foresters of Nanaimo would present their case before the commission in favor of an act similar to that of Great Britain.
At the close of the meeting a request was made that all the fraternal societies of Nanaimo should be given the opportunity of hearing all the facts concerning health insurance as presented by the speaker, who promised at

FINE CAST IN "MADAME X" AT THE DOMINION

Ruth Chatterton and Lionel Barrymore Have Feature Roles in Gripping Play

Superb Direction and Fine Acting Make Great Stage Play Even Finer on Screen

When the screen takes a time-honored novel, or a play that has achieved international success and adapts it to its own peculiar technique, the stage usually waits, curious to see how the original will be altered in the translation. Hence when Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announced "Madame X" as a new talking picture play with Ruth Chatterton, stage star, as heroine and Lionel Barrymore, famous stage actor, as director, picture fans sat up and took notice. "Would it follow the original?" The answer is being seen this week at the Dominion Theatre, where the new play is being shown all this week. For not only does the picture version retain everything that the stage play had but adds a great deal more and it is presented in a series of concentrated dramatic scenes that crowd three times the drama into the same length of time that it took to present the play. Lionel Barrymore and his scenarist Willard Mack have made the first blend of the technique of stage and silent screen. There is no scene longer than a few moments, the story being told in staccato dramatic episodes just as is done in silent pictures but with dialogue full of concentrated meaning so that not a word is wasted embellishing it.

Fred Thompson And Rod La Rocque On Bill at Columbia

"Kit Carson" and "Love Over Night" Double Bill at Columbia For Three Days

Spectacular backgrounds, mass movements of whites and Indians, struggles between trappers and the red men with Fred Thompson and his white horse, Silver King, at their best, combine to make "Kit Carson" one of the outstanding pictures of the season. Carson's life was a series of thrills and Mr. Thompson has skillfully chosen many of them in building up a remarkable dramatic story for his Paramount special which is at the Columbia Theatre.

Two pleasing love stories are threaded into the drama—one with a pretty Indian girl, and the other with a Spanish woman. This latter role is played by Nora Lane, who first leaped into prominence in "Jesse James," and later added to her laurels in "The Pioneer Scout." The Indian girl, a newcomer, is Dorothy Janis. Thanks to a pass-card from a distinguished Vienna professor who is a friend of Vilma Banay, Rod La Rocque spent part of a March morning at a heart clinic in the medical school of the world's capital of medicine. The experience came in handy when Rod posed as the "Viennese heart doctor" in a hilarious sequence at Jeanette Loff's bedside in his new picture, "Love Over Night," which is also on view at the Columbia Theatre. Tom Kennedy and Mary Carr are featured.

Murder Play Is Feature At Coliseum

Splendid Cast Plays in "On Trial," Talking Feature Here For Three Days

Raymond "Toby" Leitch and Company Will Return to the Coliseum October 28

One of Broadway's greatest stage plays, "On Trial," is the feature screen attraction at the Coliseum Theatre this week, where it is being produced as a 100 per cent singing and talking film. It is a Warner Brothers' production, and is said by motion picture critics to be one of the greatest films of the year. There is an excellent cast of famous stars playing in the picture and the plot is a gripping one. The picture will show every evening with a matinee every afternoon until Wednesday, when the bill will change for the remainder of the week. The play was written by the now celebrated playwright, Elmer Rice, at the time a clerk in a New York law office. The human drama which he saw daily in the pursuit of his duties finally crystallized into the play which when produced set New York agog. This does not mean that he was able at once to secure a producer. "On Trial" went the long, hard way of so many plays in search of a producer, and in the end made its author independent.

The case of "On Trial" includes Pauline Frederick, Bert Lytell, Lois Wilson, Holmes Herbert, Richard Tucker, Jason Robards, Johnny Arthur, Vindell Darr, Franklin Pangborn, Fred Kelsey, Edmund Breeze and Edward Martindel. The adaptation is by Robert Lord. Archie L. Mayr directed on October 28. Mr. Leitch and his company back to the stage at the Coliseum for the remainder of the winter months. Mr. Leitch is now rounding up a group of players, and hopes to open his return Victoria engagement on October 28. Mr. Leitch was here for several months last winter, and proved exceedingly popular with local audiences.

Lauder Opens For Two Nights At the Royal

Famous Comedian Will Present Programme of Old and New Songs

Sir Harry Lauder, who will open his Victoria engagement at the Royal Victoria Theatre to-night following a world tour that has covered a period of three years, is responsible for many homely bits of philosophy. Here are a few of them:

"God, work, home and a kindly neighbor over the garden wall are the only things in life really worth while."

"I would rather bring happiness to the world by affection than hell by affliction."

"Thriftiness is not a habit with the Scotch, it is a gift."

"Debt is a villain; never let him associate with you."

"Half the world is on the wrong track for happiness; too much self and not enough selfless is the tragedy."

"A friendly word spoken in a quiet way never misses the mark."

"Get infused with big things instead of infusing over little things."

"This old world needs more neighborliness."

"In all my travels three times around the world, I never met a successful man who limited his working hours."

"Ever since the Great War I have been preaching brotherly love in my songs. I will never stop preaching it. For if one can reach the hearts of the people with a song, and cheer them with its uplifting music, it is a step toward the remedy that can cure even sick nations."

Sir Harry will present a programme of new and old songs. A big company of European and American entertainers are associated with him on the programme which will be presented to-night and to-morrow night with a matinee performance to-morrow afternoon.

Five special concerts at the Empress Hotel this season: November 14, December 11, January 23, March 26, April 17.

Prediction Made Baldwin Will Soon Resign as Leader

Montreal, Oct. 14.—The prediction that Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, former Prime Minister of Great Britain, would soon retire from the leadership of the Conservative Party, was made here Saturday in an interview with The Montreal Star by Carl J. Ketchum, special foreign correspondent for the Beaverbrook newspaper.

Mr. Ketchum, according to The Star, disclosed the terms of Lord Beaverbrook's Empire trade manifesto.

"Lord Beaverbrook's Empire crusade has triumphed," Mr. Ketchum said. "Everyone in Great Britain realizes Mr. Baldwin's day is done."

He said Mr. Baldwin had lost the support of practically every single newspaper group in Britain.

GOOD ROADS LEAGUE DEBATES IMPROVEMENTS

Deputy Minister Philip Tells B.C. Body International Council Best Plan

Municipalities Not to Meet at Harrison Hot Springs To-morrow

Harrison Hot Springs, B.C., Oct. 14.—The Good Roads League of British Columbia opened its thirteenth annual convention here this forenoon, the sessions being arranged to conclude with a luncheon Tuesday. To-morrow afternoon the Union of Municipalities of British Columbia will start its twenty-sixth annual conference, which will continue till Thursday morning. The sessions of the Municipal Officers' Association of British Columbia will be held to-morrow.

During the three annual conferences the Harrison Hot Springs Hotel will have a total of 250 delegates and friends as guests.

WELCOMED BY REEVE

At the opening session of the Good Roads League, held this forenoon, the delegates were welcomed to Hot Springs by John McEwen, reeve of Kent Municipality, and Dr. J. J. Gillis, M.P.P. for Yale. Acting Mayor John Bennett of Vancouver replied.

Other speakers were J. J. Johnston, president, who gave his annual address; A. L. Carruthers, public works engineer, who dealt with "Bridge and Culvert Construction"; A. E. Craddock, manager of the Auto Club of British Columbia, who spoke of "The Highway and the Motorist"; and George S. Haines, North Vancouver city engineer, who dealt with "City Pavements."

This afternoon the programme included the following speeches: Patrick Philip, Deputy Minister of Public Works, "British Columbia's Highway Problem"; Dr. E. B. Macdonald, president of the Oregon State Motor Association, "Financing Highway Improvements"; W. H. Lynch, U. S. district engineer of Washington, Oregon and Idaho, "Low Cost of Improved Roads."

WORLD COUNCIL URGED

What the Provincial Public Works Department has found out about traffic control in recent years, what it still hopes to find out, and how it proposes to reduce the enormous human and economic toll of motor accidents were revealed to the League by Patrick Philip.

In his paper, showing facts about traffic which will surprise nearly all British Columbia motorists, the Deputy Minister of Public Works proposed an international traffic council to receive and study all accident reports, to evolve traffic rules for the world, to regulate public service transport, to standardize highways and to educate the motoring public. The motor, he said, had created a new world problem, common to all countries, and instead of regulating it on a standard basis, as railways were regulated, all countries enforced their own regulations with disastrous results. First, he declared, the world should discover the real causes of motor accidents and then set on a world-wide basis to prevent them.

The death toll from automobiles, Mr. Philip declared, was appalling. In British Columbia motorists killed more than one person a week. In Quebec five persons were killed weekly and the total for all Canada was about twenty. Mr. Philip's figures also showed 10,553 persons were killed in British Columbia last year for every 10,000 automobiles, as against 17,538 in Quebec, 9,241 in all Canada, 26,418 in Great Britain and eleven in the United States.

The idea that railway crossings were an important cause of accidents was shown by Mr. Philip to be fallacious. In all Canada, he said, only seventy-three persons were killed at crossings in the last recorded year, or sixty-eight per million cars.

"We are urged to eliminate all grade crossings," the speaker said. This is an excellent ideal, but the cost is prohibitive for the present. In the United States it would cost $200,000,000 to eliminate them, while less than one per cent of non-fatal accidents occur at grade crossings, and of the total fatal accidents only eight per cent occur under these conditions. It would not be economic to eliminate all grade crossings now, and one has little sympathy for the fool who races with trains."

The economic toll of accidents had become enormous in North America. Mr. Philip said. The United States annually lost $800,000,000 in this way, and on an equal basis the loss in Canada reached about $30,000,000, he said.

DREAM OF ENGINEERS

The dream of traffic engineers, Mr. Philip said, was a day when there would be no pedestrians, no intersections, no grade crossings on railways, only one-way traffic, highways of ample width, splendid surfaces and perfect alignment, and no glaring headlights. To achieve this, he said, three essentials of traffic control, he said, were proper education, good engineering and strict law enforcement.

SHEARER'S WORK PROTESTED IN 1927 AT GENEVA

Bridgeman Now Reveals British Aware of U.S. Propagandist's Navy Efforts

London, Oct. 14 (By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent).—The First Lord of the British Admiralty was aware of the activities of William B. Shearer, propagandist, at the Geneva disarmament conference in 1927 and protested against admission of Shearer to press conferences. This is revealed in a letter to the London Times to-day from Lord Bridgeman, who was First Lord in the Conservative Cabinet from 1924 until his resignation before the last general election.

Lord Bridgeman adds that after announcement of the British disarmament proposals in June, 1927, he ran into a violent attack in certain sections of the United States press. This included gross misrepresentations, not all of which were innocently conceived. He had secured from representative British and United States newspapermen concurrence in his declaration that certain of these reports were absolutely untrue.

QUESTIONS ASKED

The letter from Lord Bridgeman was provoked by a recent letter to the London Times from Professor Alan Archibald Swinton, famous engineer and marine scientist. Professor Swinton commented on the suspension of the inquiry into Shearer's activities by the naval sub-committee of the United States Senate during the presence in Washington of Premier Ramsay MacDonald.

"There are certain questions in the interval," Professor Swinton pressed, "which may be asked of the British delegates at the conference, who appear to have been singularly guileless and supine in the face of a most obvious and effective campaign of propaganda. Is it credible that they knew nothing of what was going on?"

To-day Lord Bridgeman replied: "Almost immediately after my announcement of the British proposals, June 20, 1927, a violent attack upon our policy was launched in certain sections of the American press, in which gross misrepresentation of our objects and of our figures were published with the obvious intention of stirring up ill-feeling against this country."

Invited representatives of the British and foreign press to meet me and ask questions, and endeavor to clear up the misunderstanding, some of which had been quite innocently conceived, but not all.

"For instance, at one of these interviews I was asked my views about the suspension of the inquiry into Shearer's activities, and did not intend to dispute the claim of the United States to equality in naval strength, or their capacity to build a fleet equal to or larger than our own. Shortly after there appeared in The Chicago Tribune a statement to the effect that I would never agree to parity and purporting to be a quotation of my answer at that meeting."

Lord Bridgeman repeats the statement to be distributed widely, and attacks on British policy and good faith and monstrous mis-statements as to the campaign, I caused representations to be made to the chief delegate from the United States about the course I believed Shearer to be taking. I expressed surprise he had been given a press ticket, as he did not appear to be a regular press man. I have since been informed Shearer got his press ticket on the ground he represented an illustrated evening paper, said to be a tabloid edition of The Chicago Tribune.

"After these representations it was disappointing to find Shearer still continued to hold his ticket and carry on the same bitter campaign. But I could do nothing except refuse to admit him to any conference I held with the press after that."

METHODS DETESTED

"Of course I did not, and do not now, imagine there was any co-operation between Shearer and the hands of the American Government, who would, I felt sure, detest his methods as much as I did. But I am very thankful President Hoover has taken the action he has, and only wish it had been possible to do so before the close of the Geneva conference of 1927."

"If that had been possible, I would, I think, have been clear that the principle of parity was not disputed and that there was no question—as Mr. Baldwin said months ago—of Britain entering a naval building competition with the United States."

Texas Sheriff Goes Half Way Round World to Get His Man

THE TWO-GUN Texas sheriff, like the red-headed parson of the Canadian Northwest Mounted and the business-like detective of famous Scotland Yard, insists upon "getting his man," no matter how long it takes.

Which is why A. B. Crouch, former grain broker of the nearby city of Temple, Tex., is now in jail in Hainesville, New Zealand, awaiting return to Texas for trial for an offence committed thirteen years ago.

Thirteen years and 12,000 miles—ordinarily that would be enough time and space to put a man well beyond the reach of the law.

But Sheriff John R. Bingham of Bell County, Texas, who journeyed all the way to New Zealand to get Crouch, is a peculiar personified.

Crouch disappeared in the spring of 1918.

Member of a prominent Bell County family, a college graduate and a capable and popular business man, he had established himself as one of the leading grain brokers in Texas. One night he vanished from his home, leaving letters to friends stating that he was disappearing forever, to begin life anew in a distant land.

After his departure it was discovered that two Temple banks had been swindled out of $125,000 by forged bills of lading and other documents. These forgeries were laid at Crouch's door. Then began the search, the thirteen-year search. Only recently came success.

In far-away New Zealand a real estate man known as John Grey was found to be Crouch. The fugitive broker had established himself in a pleasant town half way around the world and was confident that he had left his past behind him.

Now Sheriff Bingham is about on his long trip to get Crouch and bring him back to Texas for trial.

The search took thirteen years and extended half way around the earth. But a Texas sheriff makes a specialty of getting his man.

SCULLIN IS TO FORM CABINET IN AUSTRALIA

Interest for the moment has shifted to the close fight in Flinders where every additional ballot is closely scrutinized, for it seems doubtful whether Premier Bruce will beat Mr. Hollway. Labor candidate, with about 3,000 votes to come. The outcome will be in preference shares taken from the third candidate, a Liberal, who is out of the contest.

SHARES RISE

Responding to the election results, moving picture company and theatre shares have risen rapidly. This is because the Bruce Government had proposed a sharp upward revision of the amusement tax and had also intended levying taxes on profits which are sent out of the country for moving picture films. Otherwise, the markets remained quiet, with prices a little easier.

Returns filter in slowly. To-day's additions to the vote are mostly postal and absentee votes, which favor the Nationalists to some extent, but do not seem to promise any change in the standing. Hon. Sir Neville House, V.C., Minister of Health, is slowly pulling up on his Labor opponent, but three of Premier Bruce's Ministers stand defeated.

"The results exceed all my expectations," Mr. Scullin said to-day. He added he felt the federal government responsibility which would rest on the next Ministry if the Labor Party was given an opportunity to carry out what it had promised the people.

Premier Bruce said the people apparently were not prepared to accept the proposals of his Ministry for the solution of the present serious financial and industrial problems.

SENATE NATIONALIST

An important aspect of the election is that the Senate remains solidly Nationalist. It was the first election in which the Senate was not dissolved. It is composed of twenty-four Nationalists, five Country Party members and seven Laborites. The senators are elected for the Senate in 1928. In view of the Senate's position, Mr. Scullin as Prime Minister, would be unable to carry any extremist legislation if such were offered. He would, however, be able to demand dissolution of both Houses if any measure should be rejected at two consecutive sessions.

The new Parliament probably will assemble between November 13 and November 20.

HUGHES RE-ELECTED

A significant feature of the voting was the solid support accorded the three former Nationalists who helped to defeat the Bruce Government on the Labor issue in the House. These were Rt. Hon. William M. Hughes, Premier of Australia through the war years, elected in North Sydney; Lieut. Walter Marks, erstwhile naval officer of the Nationalist Party, in Wentworth; and George A. Maxwell, in Parkmore. While this little group might be called independent, it had no opposition from the Labor Party in the election after its defection from the Bruce Government.

A long delay before the final results are known is unavoidable because of the vast area of sparsely-settled country.

to be covered. Three million square miles of territory are involved. Trains, steamers, aeroplanes, camels and horses took the ballot papers over the continent.

REQUIRED TO VOTE

Everyone over twenty-one years of age was required to vote, under the compulsory voting system, and there were 3,500,000 on the rolls.

Nine candidates had been returned by acclamation—six Labor members, including Mr. Scullin himself—and three Country Party members, including the leader of this party, Hon. Earle Page, Treasurer in the Bruce Government. This left 161 candidates contesting sixty-six seats.

NEW SOUTH WALES

New South Wales, as expected, proved the stronghold of the Labor Party which captured twenty-two seats in that industrial state to four for the Nationalists, and one for the Country Party.

INDUSTRIAL ARBITRATION

Labor won the election on its staunch support of the Federal arbitration court, which the Bruce Government had intended to abolish. While Premier Bruce thought he had handed over labor jurisdiction to the six federal courts, the Labor Party fought strongly for retention of the court. The Labor men said the Bruce plan revealed an aim to reduce wages.

NEW LEADER

James Henry Scullin, who will become the fifth Labor Prime Minister of Australia since the organization of the commonwealth in 1901, is fifty-three years old. He has been editor of the Ballarat Labor daily newspaper and became federal leader of the Labor Party in 1919. He is recognized as one of the best debaters in the Commonwealth, as well as a sound financial critic. He was first elected in the Australian House of Representatives in 1916, representing the constituency of Oranmore, until 1919. For nine years he did not sit in the House, but was elected in 1922 to represent Yarra, Victoria. He was re-elected in 1926 and in this election was unopposed.

On the resignation of Matthew Charlton in April, 1928, because of ill-health, Mr. Scullin, then deputy leader of the Labor Party, became its leader, and immediately began to put life into the party. It was said at the time the real reason for Mr. Charlton's resignation was the result of intrigue against him to replace him by a more active leader.

"They are ghastly," Premier Bruce commented on the returns rolled in. "We are defeated, but we can take it like gentlemen."

EIGHT PLANES TO COMB NORTH

Winnipeg, Oct. 14.—Eight pilots, with experience in northern flying, were named to-day to search for seven fellow explorers, missing in the Barren Lands for more than five weeks. Already five planes are at Baker Lake, serial outpost 300 miles west of Hudson Bay, and three others will hop to Baker when the freeze-up brings the beginning of the hunt.

Captain B. W. Broatch is at Stony Rapids in Northern Saskatchewan to-day. Captain Charles Sutton is en route from The Pas, Northern Manitoba, to the town, and Ken Dewar is at The Pas, preparing to join Sutton and Broatch at Stony Rapids. These three are the ones selected to pilot the five machines under the command of Captain O. S. Blanchet, veteran sub-Arctic traveler, at Baker Lake.

These eight pilots were named as searchers by W. B. Brintnell, operating manager of the Western Canada Airways, who with H. R. Noweorthy, Dominion Explorers' engineer, is directing air hunt operations.

Dr. Magee to Speak To Supper Gathering

Dr. Ralph Magee will address a gathering at the Fairfield United Church on "The White Man's Problem," following a supper meeting there at 6:30 o'clock this evening.

Yesterday Dr. Magee addressed two largely attended services at the church. A large attendance is expected to attend the gathering to-night.

Lower Rates Spur British To Take Motors To Continent

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times

London, Oct. 14.—This summer has seen a marked increase in the number of British motorists spending holiday tours on the continent.

One reason for this is that motor-cars can be taken across the Channel to France at much cheaper rates than obtained two or three years ago. The railway and steamship companies now provide a daily service of cargo steamers between Dover and Calais, Folkestone and Boulogne; and New-haven and Dieppe; and on these steamers motor-cars are carried for about half the freight rate which used to be charged on the passenger steamers.

This arrangement is a great convenience to the motorist, and does away with one of the chief difficulties that used to be associated with spending a motorist holiday on the continent. The cargo steamers run in close connection with the passenger boats, and motor-cars are delivered to their owners on the other side with very little delay.

Similar difficulties are also provided for the transport of motor-cars to Ireland, and in that service, too, the experiment has been amply justified by the increased traffic that has resulted from it.

In addition, the railway companies now convey motor-cars in special trucks on long-distance journeys in this country. When sportsmen went north for "the Twelfth," there were so many motor-cars for conveyance in this way that the special trucks were made up into trains, instead of being attached in the ordinary way.

GREAT FAMINE IN CHINA CLAIMS MANY VICTIMS

The province of Shensi is probably the worst-sufferer. All ninety-two districts are said to be in the grip of slow death, while in towns and villages bodies lie in the streets. Whole villages have been depopulated by death or desertion of homes and the surrounding country is as bare of vegetation as desert. Drought, one of the longest in China's lengthy history, has kept arid for four or five years, fields which formerly were known as among the most fertile in the country.

RELIEF WORK

In the city of Sian, Shensi Province, twelve concentration camps have been opened and nineteen relief stations are operating day and night. The bread lines are so long it sometimes takes two days or more for all the persons in one line to pass in front of the station and receive one scanty ration apiece.

$15 A BUSHEL

In many villages people are tearing down their homes and exchanging the food for fuel. In Sian a bushel of barley sells for $15 and the cheapest grain is $12. Households worth several dollars in ordinary times have been swamped for just enough food to last a single person two or three days.

Children have been abandoned or killed to keep them from dying of slow starvation. Numerous youngsters, hungry and crying, have been found beside the bodies of their parents. Suicides are numerous.

The autumn crops in Shensi were a total loss, there is no seed for replanting and conditions must grow worse unless the Government steps in.

The administration at Nanking is in financial straits and has called upon the people of more fortunate sections for subscriptions to relief funds. It has asked Shanghai and other cities to raise $5,000,000 and the public is said to be responding generously. Offices have also been opened to collect funds for the purchase of seed.

COMMUNISTS IN TORONTO ARE TAKEN TO COURT

Toronto, Oct. 14.—Eight arrests followed communist attempts to hold a "free speech" meeting in Queen's Park here Saturday. The police, under precautions. The communists were refused permission to enter the park to hold a "free speech" meeting, and women led by Jack Macdonald, local communist leader, retreated down University Avenue, Macdonald on the way declaring against "police illegality" and exhorting the workers not to "stand this."

Police finally dispersed them, using force only when a few of the more ardent spirits stubbornly refused to "move on." Those arrested, six men and two women, were charged with disorderly conduct. They were released on bail Saturday night to appear in police court this morning.

MISS MACKAIL IS FILM MODEL AT THE CAPITOL

Popular and Pretty Actress Has Role of New York Manikin in "Hard to Get"

Supported By Splendid Cast Including Charles Delaney and Louise Fazenda

Now the love-complexes of a manikin in one of the very ultra New York modiste shops have been probed by the camera lens and stethoscoped by the microphone.

The process has resulted in "Hard to Get," a new First National-Vitaphone production which is showing to-day, Tuesday and Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre.

Dorothy Mackaill stars in the model's role, with a bevy of other beautiful models supporting her, and a small army of leading men.

Among the latter are Charles Delaney, who finally wins the girl, Edmund Burns and Jack Oakie and one of the principal supporting roles rests in the capable hands of Louise Fazenda.

The picture, incidentally, is the first independent starring vehicle for Miss Mackaill.

In the city of Sian, Shensi Province, twelve concentration camps have been opened and nineteen relief stations are operating day and night. The bread lines are so long it sometimes takes two days or more for all the persons in one line to pass in front of the station and receive one scanty ration apiece.

Mackaill, who was so popular in various pictures with Jack Muhlhall, and was cited by critics for her great performances in "The Barker" and "His Captive Woman" with Milton Sills.

In "Hard to Get" she stalks millionaires in the Fifth Avenue jungles—and has a novel affair with a garage mechanic by mistake!

Tired, Weak, Nervous Woman Benefited

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Asbestos Mines, Quebec.—"After the birth of my second child, I was always feeling tired, nervous and weak and had headaches, backaches and terrible pains every month. I suffered two years before I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I got four bottles at first and it did me a world of good. I would not be without it in the house now, and have another six bottles in. I recommend it to every woman I know."—Mrs. T. BARRITT, Box 114, Asbestos Mines, Quebec.

chiefly of private cars, belonging to railroad officials. A double file of 200 policemen formed a line from the Vanderbilt entrance of the terminal to the train through which the Premier and his party passed.

AT NIAGARA FALLS

The Premier and his party will leave the special train at Buffalo and motor to Niagara Falls, N.Y., where they will be guests of the New York State Reservation Commission. To-morrow will be spent in viewing the falls and the surrounding country and the crossing into Canada will be made in mid-afternoon.

At Niagara Falls, Ontario, the Prime Minister and those accompanying him will board a special train of the Canadian National Railways for Toronto, arriving there in the early evening and proceeding to Government House, residence of the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, where they will spend the night. From Toronto the party will go to Ottawa, then to Montreal and Quebec, at which port the Prime Minister and those with him will board the Empress of Canada for the return voyage to England.

real and Quebec, at which port the Prime Minister and those with him will board the Empress of Canada for the return voyage to England.

STATEMENT AWAITED

Before sailing from Quebec for home Premier MacDonald is expected to make an announcement of another important step in the negotiations with President Hoover looking to a better Anglo-American understanding. Naturally the nature of the pronouncement is carefully guarded, but since it is to be made in Canada after conference there with Premier King and other Dominion officials, speculation is that it will deal with a matter in the negotiations which is of interest to Canada.

Unofficial information here to-day was that Mr. MacDonald would make the statement at Ottawa next Thursday, but whether it would take the form of a written document or be embodied in the address he is to make that night at a dinner to be given by the Government in the Parliament Buildings was left to conjecture.

The British statesman will arrive in Ottawa early Thursday and will spend the afternoon alone with Mr. King on a visit at the Prime Minister's country home at Kingsmere. The official dinner will start at 8 p.m. after the two leaders return to Ottawa.

NAVAL BASES

In his final statement before leaving Washington, Premier MacDonald said some of the matters he and President Hoover had discussed would be studied by sections of the British Foreign Office, and that others would be taken up with the Dominions as soon as might be.

It is no secret now that during the conversations at Washington the matter of fortified naval bases in Canada and British bases in the West Indies came in for discussion. There was a suggestion by the President that these should be dismantled and naturally Canada would be consulted, as the base at Halifax is solely under Canadian control.

Although he was kept fairly busy with official and unofficial engagements from the time of his arrival in New York last Thursday, Mr. MacDonald gave time to government affairs and it may well be that he already has set in motion the distant machinery which is to deal with subjects discussed with Mr. Hoover.

air was pumped into the forward holds with the object of lightening her. The Empress of Canada carried no cargo on her trip out from the United Kingdom.

DIRECT OPERATIONS
Capt. J. M. Hewison, commander of the Salvage King, and Thomas Allen, superintendent of the Pacific Salvage Company, are on the scene directing the salvage operations.

Capt. Edward Aikman, marine superintendent for the Canadian Pacific Steamships Limited, with headquarters at Vancouver, is directing affairs on behalf of the owners.

There was comparatively little excitement on board the Empress of Canada when she fetched up. The first-class passengers, numbering ninety-six all told, were lounging about the promenade and public rooms, in an unapparent passing quarantine inspection.

The ship, which had over-run her course, was proceeding dead slow, feeling her way in the dense fog which completely blanketed the coastline.

Capt. George Roberts, of Vancouver, the regular pilot for Canadian Pacific ocean ships, had boarded the liner but a few minutes before she struck. Capt. Griffiths, the commander of the Empress of Canada, is a stranger in this coastal, having been in command of the liner Empress of France on the transatlantic route between Southampton and Quebec.

As the Canada struck, passengers who were peering over the side, declared they could see the bottom before the mud was stirred up astern of the vessel.

NO PANIC
There was no indication of panic among the passengers as the ship thudded and grinded to a standstill. It was realized that something untoward had happened, but the vessel remained on an even keel, and there was no occasion for alarm.

The telegraph rang for the engines full speed astern, but the ship remained fast. The fog lifted and intensified in density with tantalizing frequency.

The Empress of Canada rested so close inshore that the officers on the bridge were able to talk to people who had been attracted to the point of land jutting into the sea.

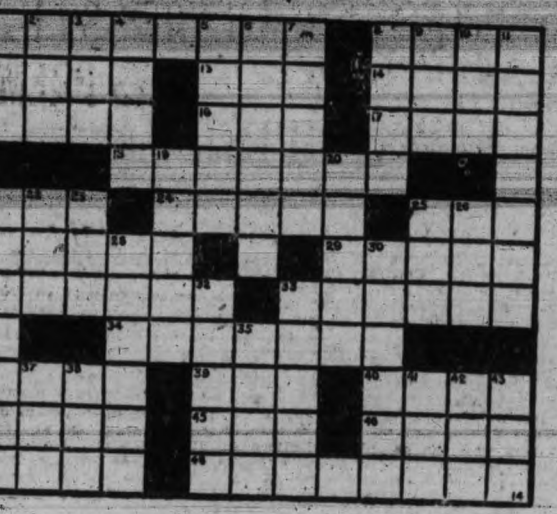

The ship's stern rested within a few yards of this point, and the high superstructure and towering smokestacks could be seen at times through the mist from the Albert Head highway.

With the spreading of the news of the stranding, thousands of people motored out from the city and district to witness the unusual sight of a large vessel ashore within close proximity to port.

With the partial lifting of the fog this morning the interest in the wreck did not abate, hundreds of automobiles being parked in the vicinity and the cliffs lined with spectators intently watching the operations of the salvage crews.

PASSENGERS WERE LANDED
The first thought of the company was for the safety and comfort of the passengers. The steamer Otter, with Capt. A. A. Harrison in command, was dispatched to the scene with the least possible delay, carrying immigration and customs officials, also representatives of the company assigned to task of looking after the interests of the travelers. The ships' company was lowered and the passengers trooped down to the deck of the coast steamer. Their baggage followed, being along over the side by the liner's cargo derrick.

As the passengers lined up on the deck of the Otter they gave three rousing cheers for Capt. "Tanker" Griffiths and then lustily sang "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." Capt. Griffiths made himself very popular with the passengers in his charge during the voyage. He is a veteran of the company's service and this is his first accident in forty years at sea.

The Otter, with the Empress of Canada's passengers aboard, reached the Belleville street docks at 5:45 o'clock last evening.

As the company's guests, the passengers appearing anything but shipwrecked, were taken to the Empress Hotel and given their own choice of accommodation.

The steamer Princess Kathleen was temporarily recommissioned to take the 1:45 o'clock sailing to Vancouver for the convenience of those passengers who desired to proceed to the mainland port. The Empress of Canada was destined to Vancouver when she came to grief as she was making her way into the quarantine station at William Head.

DIVERS GO DOWN
As a preliminary salvage operation

the Pacific Salvage Company is using compressed air which is being pumped by the Salvage King into the punctured holds to give buoyancy and force the water out. Powerful centrifugal pumps have been set up on the liner to relieve the water pressure below. Divers McLean and Collins went down to-day to examine the damage from the outside.

Intense activity reigns at the scene with a swarm of boats clustered about the giant hull of the stranded ship. Harold Elworthy, manager of the Island Tug and Barge Company, arranged for the dispatch of the company's tug to the scene and this morning sent out three hopper barges into which is being pumped 2,000 tons of fuel oil from the ships tanks.

As the tide receded, the great ship, which had been resting on an even keel, gave a slight list to starboard. It was two hours before high tide yesterday that the Empress of Canada went ashore. High tide to-day occurred at 1:33 p.m., with a rise of 7 feet 2 inches.

JOB FOR ESQUIMAULT
The popular saying is phrased: "It's an ill wind that blows nobody good." The stranding of the Empress of Canada means an important and costly repair contract, which will necessitate the use of the Government drydock at Esquimaux.

This 1,150-foot graving basin is the only one on the North Pacific coast outside of the United States. It is capable of handling a ship of such dimensions as the Empress of Canada, which has an overall length of 637 feet. The drydock is within a few miles of the stranded ship. With success attending the efforts to float the Empress of Canada, the giant vessel will be taken to Esquimaux for drydocking and survey.

The inner gate has been removed and the blocks have been prepared for the reception of the ship when she is once again afloat.

On her ill-fated trip the Empress of Canada was bound to Vancouver from Southampton after being completely re-engined at the Clyde plant of the Fairfield Shipbuilding Company, where the double-reduction geared turbines were taken out and replaced by single-reduction turbines of the latest Parsons' type, of greater power and with superheaters. These engines have increased the ship's sea speed to over twenty-one knots.

FRANCE TO STAY
The Empress of Canada was scheduled to resume her sailings from Vancouver and Victoria to the Orient on Thursday next and a large booking of passengers was destined to sail on her, many to attend the Institute of Pacific Relations Conference at Kyoto and also the Engineering Congress at Tokyo.

The mishap to the liner has caused the Canadian Pacific Steamships Ltd. to change its plans.

The liner Empress of France, which has been operating in place of the Empress of Canada on the Pacific route all summer, will be retained on this ocean for another round voyage to the Orient.

Lillian Gish Spoiled First Stage Appearance
Six-year-old Lillian Gish was making her first appearance on the stage. It wasn't much of a part she had to be sure. She was to be a little girl in a thrilling drama. In the plot she was supposed to be put down in a rocky hole, which the villain blew up with dynamite. Just before it blew up, however, the hero was supposed to swing down on a rope and pick her up, taking her away safely.

At the first performance all went along smoothly. The hero swung down in the hole and picked up the dummy, and then swung to safety, while she remained hidden, but just after he had pulled out the supposed little girl the orchestra made a loud boom to sound like an explosion, which terrified Lillian, and then to the great surprise of the audience she gave a scream and came tumbling up out of the hole and ran off the stage.

Lillian Gish, whose birthday is to-day, became one of the first of the moving picture stars.

HARRY LAUDER IS GLAD TO BE BACK ON COAST

World-renowned Scotch Comedian Making His "Sixth Annual Farewell Tour"

Thought Something Would Happen in Fog Yesterday; Lunches With Governor

Sir Harry Lauder, who has been making the world laugh for the last forty-five years, arrived in town yesterday afternoon on what he claims to be his "sixth annual farewell tour."

Accompanied by his niece, Miss Greta Lauder, the genial Scotch comedian arrived from Vancouver by the steamer Princess Marguerite which, because of the fog in the Straits, was forced to land passengers at the Rietveld docks in the Outer Harbor.

"I thought something like that would happen," ejaculated Sir Harry, informed by a Times reporter that the Empress of Canada had gone ashore within a few miles of the harbor mouth.

"I had a presentiment that an accident would occur in that fog. I didn't feel uncomfortable, but it was a bit too thick to suit me."

"I would sooner be aboard ship in a roaring hurricane on the high seas than to face a chance in fogbound coast waters."

RELAXED ON ARRIVAL

Feeling the effects of a strenuous tour, Sir Harry was a little tired when he reached the Empress Hotel yesterday afternoon, and it was not long before he discarded his kilt, sporran and bonnet for a dressing gown and slippers.

He relaxed and contentedly smoked his favorite old briar as he related some of his recent travels.

"I'm glad to be back on the Pacific Coast," said Sir Harry, "I am always sure of an enthusiastic welcome out here."

"The Canadians and Americans have always been kindly disposed towards me and I feel that I am one of them. Vancouver gave me a great reception last week."

SAANICH WILL BE DEBT FREE BY TO-MORROW

Municipality Redeems Paving Issue and Abolishes Debt Levy

Saanich will to-morrow occupy the unique position of being the only major municipality of British Columbia to be free of general debt and without a debt levy. The Road Improvement By-law of 1914, which pledged the municipal corporation for an issue of $450,000 5% per cent debentures with a life of fifteen years, will be redeemed in full to-morrow, being the only security remaining other than revenue producing waterworks issues.

Of the issue under call the municipality already has redeemed and cancelled bonds worth $202,000 and to-morrow will pay off outstanding debentures worth $144,000.

The redemption is made with sinking funds released by the present advantageous sale of a large investment in P.G.E. stock, purchased some years ago at much less than the price received.

SMELTER PLAN UNDER STUDY, SAYS PREMIER

Cabinet "Very Keen" to Attain Canadian Smelting of B.C. Ores, Gyros Assured

Premier S. F. Tolmie was the guest of the Gyro Club this afternoon at the weekly luncheon held at the Empress Hotel grillroom. He was glad of the opportunity given him to point out, to young business men, the opportunities existing in the great development of the Province now in progress.

"Do we feel we are getting our share of the business of the west coast and the Gulf Islands? Are you pressing the Government for such things as a ferry to Salt Spring Island, where 1,400 potential customers of Victoria live?" he asked.

"Are we taking proper measures regarding power. In a few years we will wonder where it has all gone," the Premier warned.

He touched on the possibilities of power, remarking that the Bamberco cement works had been operated on this fuel for seven years, and several cars of Vancouver Island coal were about to be tested in the Federal Government's experimental plant.

Canada imported vast quantities of foreign made goods, much of which the Premier believed could be supplied from British Columbia's farms and factories. On this matter he stressed the necessity of quality and prompt delivery.

HOME SMELTER

Touching on the shipment of British Columbia copper ores to Tacoma, Dr. Tolmie pointed out the importance of doing this finishing work in Canada. "This is very keen in the minds of the Government. If there is any way of smelting this ore in British Columbia we will move heaven and earth to do it," he pledged.

"MIDNIGHT INN" TOURISTS

The tourist trade was discussed by Dr. Tolmie, who pointed out that revenue from this source was the most profitable available. He told of the route proposed for the new Alaska-Yukon highway from the International Boundary, but warned, "do not be afraid we are going to plunge you into debt for such a programme. We have 22,000 miles of road already to keep up. But think of the tourist attraction of being able to offer United States motorists a visit to the Land of the Midnight Sun," he said.

The Premier stated that Hon. Wm. Atkinson and Dr. Geddes had returned from the Peace River territory overflowing with enthusiasm as to the value of that agricultural empire and the importance of linking the territory closely to Vancouver and the Pacific Coast.

TRAIN CHILDREN

Dr. Tolmie urged the Gyros to aid in training school children in appreciation of the advantages of this Province. "I am sure you young men will have a very great experience in this Province within the next twenty-five years," he said, contrasting modern transportation with conditions of his own youth.

Dr. Harvey Johns rendered vocal services accompanied by Charles Hunt, Arthur Fraser and Dr. Arthur Webster were welcomed as new members and a number of members received birthday gifts.

SAANICH WILL BE DEBT FREE BY TO-MORROW

Municipality Redeems Paving Issue and Abolishes Debt Levy

Saanich will to-morrow occupy the unique position of being the only major municipality of British Columbia to be free of general debt and without a debt levy. The Road Improvement By-law of 1914, which pledged the municipal corporation for an issue of $450,000 5% per cent debentures with a life of fifteen years, will be redeemed in full to-morrow, being the only security remaining other than revenue producing waterworks issues.

Of the issue under call the municipality already has redeemed and cancelled bonds worth $202,000 and to-morrow will pay off outstanding debentures worth $144,000.

The redemption is made with sinking funds released by the present advantageous sale of a large investment in P.G.E. stock, purchased some years ago at much less than the price received.

CANADA'S LIQUOR CONTROL SUCCESS, U.S. IS NOW TOLD

Association Against Prohibition Announces Results of Its Inquiry

Washington, Oct. 11.—The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment has concluded, after a study of the Canadian liquor control systems, that nine-tenths of the Canadian people have rid themselves of bootleggers by doing away with prohibition and adopting various methods of government regulation.

Over conclusions drawn from the investigation, made public by the association to-day, were that government control "demonstrates that the liquor traffic can be so regulated as to prevent abuses which affect public welfare and morality," intemperance has decreased and savings have increased.

STUDIED IN PROVINCES

The study was based on the operation of the various government control systems in all but two of the nine provinces of Canada—Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island—and the conclusions were offered, the association said, "to persons who may wish to know the facts about the Canadian systems, and particularly those who accept the evils of the Volstead Act only because they prefer that law to the saloon."

The investigation was said to have developed that the trend of drinking was toward wine and beer and that "except among the diehard prohibitionists, the laws are supported by a public which had previously refused to obey dry statutes."

FEWER ARRESTS

Arrests for drunkenness in all provinces were said to be less than half the pre-war rate. Per capita savings

SOVIET FLIERS IN SEATTLE PLAN ATLANTIC JUMP

Russians, Who Yesterday Arrived From Alaska, to Fly to New York

Seattle, Oct. 14.—Conquest of the Atlantic may be a sequel to the epoch-making Moscow to New York flight of the plane "Land of the Soviets," S. A. Shestakov, commander and chief pilot of the expedition, revealed to-day as preparations were being made to convert the machine from a sea to a land plane.

Worn out by the Sunday flight from Waterfall, Alaska, to Seattle, during which their plane buffeted a thirty-five-mile an hour head wind, the four Russian fliers were emphatic in their desire to return to Moscow by air instead of the more prosaic steamship and railway route from New York.

The hop from Waterfall took exactly ten hours and ten minutes, Navigator Boris V. Sterligov said.

FLEW WEST OF ISLAND

The plane alighted here at 5:27 yesterday afternoon.

The route followed was to the westward of Vancouver Island, and then down the Strait of Juan de Fuca, a distance of approximately 645 miles. Poor flying conditions obtained. The naval radio station kept those waiting at the airport here informed of the plane's progress.

BY WAY OF ALEUTIANS

The Russians flew from Moscow across Siberia and approached Alaska by way of the Aleutian Islands. When they landed in rough water at Dutch Harbor, Unalakleet Island, only the quick aid rendered by members of the United States coastguard saved the craft from destruction. The plane was again threatened by storms at Seward. Poor flying conditions kept those waiting at the airport here informed of the plane's progress.

Incident, but were forced down by a faulty motor at Waterfall shortly after they had left Sitka for Seattle. A new one, taken north from Seattle, was installed and they resumed their flight yesterday.

Believed Relocated

Stewart, B.C. Oct. 14.—A new mineralized area of major importance has been discovered at the head of American Creek, on which forty claims have been located by R. E. Stewart for himself and associates, including the following: The new discovery, which lies on the same mountain range ten miles north of the older claims. A good road along the valley of American Creek could be made without difficulty, and the crossing of the glacier which has been instrumental in deterring prospectors from investigating the upper valley.

Kimball made the discovery some weeks ago, but continued prospecting until the discovery of the vein was certain. The vein was named "Golden Gate," which was found to cover a large area, the main veins following a northwesterly strike of the mountain range, with T-shaped east-west ridges.

CHAPTER XXXV

"But you haven't been doing it long," Shalimar vouched, "since, if you won't mind, me for being so unoriginal—all work and no play, and all that, you know."

"Practically all my life," Bob told her, ignoring the compliment. Shalimar was not yet stopped. "My, how exceedingly difficult it must be to dim your light," she came back without pause. "I envy you, boy, you can't do without a little play. Know any playgrounds?"

Bob looked around at Helen, and was about to ask what was wrong with Bramblewood, when he remembered Helen's recent bereavement. At least he was old-fashioned enough to consider it recent and to respect Helen for not forgetting it, in what might have been, had she wished, a continuous round of pleasures.

"How should I know—when I don't play?" he evaded. "We might, if we could drop Helen at home and borrow her car, and a few—anyway one," Shalimar replied, delighting in Bob's growing embarrassment and his attempt to sidestep her. Eva barely suppressed a gasp but Helen managed a laugh. "Why, of course, I'll be glad to let you take the car, since I can't go with you," she said, adding to herself: "If he takes her out in my car I'll never speak to him again!"

It must be a favorite sport of the gods to set people at cross purposes, especially people who love each other. Such people take all trifles that touch upon their relations with one another with a seriousness that often spells the doom of their happiness. This was such an instance.

"Bob doesn't care," Bob thought. "Bob has a car of his own," Eva said snappishly. "I couldn't ask Miss Morris to ride in that," Bob said, with far more disdain for his lowly possession than he felt.

Helen flushed, remembering the ride they'd had in that same car just the night before. He had seemed to think it good enough for her. And it had been a lovely ride. "Well, come along," she said, "see you to-morrow, Eva."

Eva turned her head away. Sharply it might have seemed had anyone been tranquil enough to notice. "Not to-morrow, Helen," she answered evasively, "unless you want me to run in after dinner. I'm going down to New York."

"Again?" It was Bob who asked, and his face had sobered considerably. Eva's answer was unambiguous. "Yes," she said. "I... you know I should have a lesson every day." Her voice, too high and too false, for the mere answering of a simple query, further troubled her brother.

But he did not say anything more to her, for at that moment their mother came into the living-room. Helen went over and kissed her, an act at which Shalimar stared in amazement. Helen, who had never been demonstrative or well Shalimar wanted to laugh on a sudden thought, but there was no excuse for visible mirth at the moment.

"That's a line," she commented to herself. "Sorry, old dear," flinging a mental challenge to Helen. "I see why little Eva. Well, she keeps her men who notes them. Mother stuff," Shalimar never shorted, but she came close to it as that moment. "She must think the kid has a mother complex. Well, something different on my hook, baby lamb. Something hotter."

"I did not even occur to her that Helen was indulging a starved desire for mother love. Neither did it occur to her that there was any reason why she should not want a man that Helen was interested in. To Shalimar each person was an individual. The strings that a man might attach to himself were for him to consider, not for her to concern herself with. She felt a right to have whatever she could take."

Why look at a man as anything but a free agent? It wasn't fair to the man. Why say to him: "You poor devil, remember your shackles?" Why not help him to forget that which fills his heart?

It wasn't honor, it wasn't responsibility, it wasn't anything but love that had made the man want to marry the other girl, Shalimar knew. What she had resented was his suggestion that she could keep on trying to make him fall in love with her, regardless of his marriage. She was furious because she had failed. Had she met him after his marriage it would not have hindered her hunting, but her pride was through with him.

Bob, however, was new game. "Won't you all stay for coffee and a bite to eat?" Mrs. East invited her to eat. "Bob and I have a date," Shalimar declined, purposely using his shortened name to give them all a bump.

"Good-night," Eva said abruptly and edged out of the room. She did not want to talk with her mother-to-night. There was that unfinished scene of the afternoon, following upon her return from the city. She did not care to renew it.

"What is the matter with you, Eva?" Shalimar asked. "She's dreary those words. As though one could not claim the right to hide pain, let it show in the eyes ever so much."

"They shouldn't nag me! They ought to let me alone!" she walked into her pillow after her mother had knocked on her locked door and, waiting in vain for admittance had given up and gone on to her room, her heart heavy with dread.

Eva too was unhappy abed, dinner had been forgotten, the high heels of her slippers digging perilously into the lace counterpane.

Only Shalimar appeared to be having a good time. She sat beside Bob and flirted like mad. But she couldn't get very far in the car because Bob could not see her and her strength lay in her looks.

She tried other things, but he did not respond. When she leaned on him he leaned away. When she asked if he could drive with one hand he said no.

Shalimar was not coy and Bob was not complex. Which made all the more dangerous for him had he but known it. For coyness is never subtle and from looked the simple person cannot escape unless he is too simple to see caught in it.

"You must know of some place where we can dance," Shalimar said in a voice that would have made Bob feel like a boy scout to deny it. "Are you particular?" he asked, thinking of a roudhouse a few miles ahead of them. There was another one beyond it, but checks were paid there with $100 bills. Bob smiled to think of himself passing out $100 bills to a waiter.

"I think it's best that Montana Malone—let's see—let's see—Shalimar said. "I like her stuff, if that's an answer."

"Not for me," Bob promptly replied. "I've got to win a few law suits first. 'I'll give you my first divorce,' Shalimar promised. 'I'm not so lousy—don't you love that word?—with money to myself. Go to collect a few alimony cheques.'"

"I'm not going in for divorce cases," Bob said disapprovingly. Shalimar laughed. "Well, it's not your future that interests me so much, dear one, as the feeling I have that you're a marvelous dancer. Come on. 'This is a cheap place,' 'b' warned her when they drove up to their destination."

"No mind. I won't see anything but you," Bob was not taking her at all seriously. But a little later, when she was crawling against him on the dance floor he could not take her lightly, she was an entrancing creature, alluring with a nameless passion.

He had not desire to find out what it was, but it pleased him, since it had fallen to his lot to take a girl out just to spite Helen—at least he hoped it would spite her—that she should be attractive. It made it easier.

For it wasn't a pleasant thing to be doing. Childish, he told himself. But what the devil! Helen, with you quite ideas might get a noble reaction out of it and hope he would fall sincerely in love with her friend.

What about this girl he was dancing with? Couldn't he learn to love her? He was too wise to think she'd fallen very hard for him simply because she flirted with him. But what if he tried to make her serious? It would be a release from his maddening ache for Helen if he could start something with Shalimar. Why couldn't it be done.

But he'd play clean. "What's that funny name Helen called you?" he said, bending his head closer to her ear. "It's a beautiful name, Shalimar."

"Shalimar," Bob repeated it, but he was thinking: "Why did Helen come over to-night? Fool! To bring Eva home, of course. Probably didn't expect to meet me. And maybe she didn't care... don't believe her, you know she cares, but she's quitting. She couldn't quit if she cared enough."

His dawning was at an end. When they were seated at their table again he said, with a directness that startled Shalimar, and that was by no means an easy thing to do: "I'd like to fall in love with you."

Then he paused. "And?" Shalimar invited. "—don't think you're worth it, with your easy talk of divorce and alimony, but I don't think it ever would come to marriage. I'm too poor for that."

Shalimar's face suddenly became a blank. She sat back and stared at him. "Just what," she asked, "are you proposing to me?"

BEDTIME STORY Uncle Wiggily and the China Rabbit

Copyright, 1929, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
By HOWARD R. GARIS

Uncle Wiggily and his wife were out for a walk one day when, as the lady rabbit came in front of a store, she suddenly stopped and said: "Come along inside and buy myself a paper of pins."

"What in the world do you want of a paper of pins?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "You can't read a paper of pins, for it has no story in it. And pins are sharp, like stick yourself."

"I know better 'n on to try to read a paper of pins," laughed Mrs. Longears. "As for sticking myself, I'm not going to use the pins. I am going to have a new dress made and Nurse Jane wants to pin it to me first to see how it looks on me before she sews it. So I'll go in and get the pins and you stay outside."

"All right," Uncle Wiggily answered. "I'm waiting for his wife he looked in the store window and saw among other things, a white china rabbit. I don't mean the rabbit was China like a Chinese laundry or anything like that. But the rabbit was made of chinaware, like the teacups in your kitchen."

He saw a white china rabbit

"What a cute little china rabbit," said Uncle Wiggily. "I think I'll buy it to take home. It will be company for me after my own little rabbit boys and girls have gone to bed."

His dawning was at an end. When they were seated at their table again he said, with a directness that startled Shalimar, and that was by no means an easy thing to do: "I'd like to fall in love with you."

Three Lose Lives In Plane Wreck
Lake Providence, La., Oct. 14.—M. Hatch twenty-eight, Lake Providence pilot and two passengers, H. Hollingsworth, twenty, and Stanley Goun, sixteen, both of Oak Grove, were burned to death yesterday afternoon when their plane fell in flames from 2,000 feet and crashed on a road near the airport here.

The plane was seen to smoke and then flames appeared on one side. Hatch tried to alight his plane into a landing strip but failed to touch his passengers, but lost control. The impact when the plane struck the ground threw Hollingsworth out and broke both his legs. He died forty-five minutes later.

Sooke
Sooke Harbor has been the scene of exceptional activity during the last few days. Heavy catches of herring have been made and a number of West Coast halibut fishing boats, mostly U.S. vessels, have put into Sooke to obtain herring for bait. Over a score of vessels have been supplied during the week.

The many friends of Mrs. Goodrich will be pleased to know that she is making satisfactory progress after her operation a few days ago in Victoria. Mrs. Wilham has returned to Sooke after spending a few days at Gordon Head.

"Cigarette business is keeping up with the age, production being the keynote. Various brands are popular on account of the card inserts. BUCKINGHAMs are alone as they stand for QUALITY."

I purchased my first package of BUCKINGHAM cigarettes some ten months ago. The satisfaction derived from their coolness and mellowness impressed me immensely.

Since then BUCKINGHAM have been my favorite smoke and I recommend them very highly.

Now in the night the mean old Bob Cat sneaked into Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow to catch Mr. Longears asleep. And the first the Bob Cat saw was the china inkwell rabbit on the table.

"Oh, what a funny little rabbit! It made me red and black! I guess I'd better run away before something else happens!"

So away ran the Bob Cat and he didn't get Mr. Longears that night. And in the morning the story-burner wondered how the ink got spilled. But that was easily cleared up. And if the loaf of bread will turn somersaults with the chocolate cake I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily's waterfalls.

Not Very Obliging: "Dear Sir—I regret to inform you that my rent is much overdue. Will you please forward me a cheque?" Best came the reply: "Dear Sir—I see no reason why I should pay your rent. I can't pay my own."

Three Lose Lives In Plane Wreck

Lake Providence, La., Oct. 14.—M. Hatch twenty-eight, Lake Providence pilot and two passengers, H. Hollingsworth, twenty, and Stanley Goun, sixteen, both of Oak Grove, were burned to death yesterday afternoon when their plane fell in flames from 2,000 feet and crashed on a road near the airport here.

The plane was seen to smoke and then flames appeared on one side. Hatch tried to alight his plane into a landing strip but failed to touch his passengers, but lost control. The impact when the plane struck the ground threw Hollingsworth out and broke both his legs. He died forty-five minutes later.

Sooke
Sooke Harbor has been the scene of exceptional activity during the last few days. Heavy catches of herring have been made and a number of West Coast halibut fishing boats, mostly U.S. vessels, have put into Sooke to obtain herring for bait. Over a score of vessels have been supplied during the week.

The many friends of Mrs. Goodrich will be pleased to know that she is making satisfactory progress after her operation a few days ago in Victoria. Mrs. Wilham has returned to Sooke after spending a few days at Gordon Head.

Mrs. Dicks Sr. has returned to Victoria after staying for some time with her son and daughter-in-law. Mrs. J. Forrest returned to her home on Sooke Road with her infant daughter.

Mrs. O. Jones has as her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Unwin and daughter. The monthly meeting of the Holy Trinity, Sooke, Branch of the Women's Auxiliary, was held at the home of Mrs. O. Thrupp on Wednesday. Tea was afterwards served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Whitty.

DOROTHY DIX

THE TROUBLE with marriage is that we expect the impossible of it. We expect it to be a glorious success, without our putting forth one effort to make it so and we complain that it is a failure when we have used less intelligence, less sportsmanship, less energy in trying to make a go of it than we do in any other form of human endeavor. We couldn't run a dog stand the way we do marriage without going bankrupt.

To begin with, look at the casual way in which people marry. If a man is going into a business partnership with another man, he looks up his record. He finds out if the other man is honest and reliable; if he is industrious; if he knows anything about the business they are going into, and how much he is going to invest in it in money and personal service. But he goes into a life partnership with a woman for no better reason than that she has the come-hither look in her eye and a peaches-and-cream complexion. He doesn't even take the trouble to find out whether she has any brains or not, or whether she is industrious or lazy, extravagant or thrifty, or whether she has any single quality that he will want in a wife.

And women use just as little intelligence in selecting their husbands. A girl wouldn't think of buying a dress without giving a lot of thought to whether it was becoming to her and her lines and was suitable for the purpose she wanted, and how it would stand the wear and tear of usage, but she will marry a man because he is good looking, or a peppy dancer, or has a snappy line, without once considering whether he is congenial, whether his ideas match hers or not, or even whether he will be able to support her or not.

A very large number of people, especially men, are disgruntled with marriage because they resent its bondage. They want to be free, untrammelled, able to come and go and do as they please, but the idea of personal liberty is a chimera. There is no such thing. We are all bound on the wheel. We all give hostages to fortune. That is life.

The man who makes millions does it by slavery to his business. The great opera singer cannot even eat what he likes. The successful doctor and lawyer cannot drop their professional duties and go off to play. We are no more free of our business and professional obligations than we are of our matrimonial ones, yet it is the bondage of matrimony against which we howl to high Heaven.

Lots of us make bad bargains. We buy things that don't look so good to us when we get them home as they did in the shop windows. We are disappointed in the new car we have acquired and find that it isn't just exactly what we needed. We go into enterprises that we thought would return a million-a-minute profit and we find that they are all work and worry and no dividends. Every young man who goes into a business or into a profession passes through a season of despair and discouragement and a feeling that he has made a mistake and wishing that he had chosen something else.

But it is only on our matrimonial bad bargains that we feel we have a right to wretch. It is only our marriage contracts that we feel we should have a right to break if we get tired of them, or see something new in the husband or wife line we would rather have. It is only the best of our bargains and to carry on through the first years of disappointment to success, as we so often do in business.

Admittedly a large number of husbands and wives live a cat-and-dog existence. Why? Because they make no effort to sell themselves to each other, as they do to those with whom it is to their advantage to get along. It is appalling, but it is true, that the average husband and wife show to no other human being on earth such rudeness, such utter lack of all consideration as they do to each other.

And the queer part of it is that these two people who make life so miserable for each other do not sin through ignorance. Both have the technique of handling each other at their fingers' ends, but they scorn to use it.

They have a row every morning over the coffee, but the wife never bothers to learn how to make it right. There are subjects that are just as good for a fight as a nickel is for a ginger cake, but instead of burying them under tons of silence the wife drags them out on the carpet. The husband knows he can jolly his wife into doing anything, but he uses the hammer instead of the salve-spreader. He knows that the hangers and thistles for a word of praise, but wild horses couldn't drag it from him.

If men made the same effort to get along with their wives and used on them the arts and wiles that they do on their women customers and clients and patients, and if the women tried as hard to placate their husbands and to rub their fur the right way as they do that of grouchy bosses, it would turn matrimony from being a scrapping match into a peace anthem.

Another charge that is brought against matrimony is that it is dull and monotonous. So is business. No thrill lasts long. We can't be on our tiptoes all the time. Most of existence is just plodding along the same old road, doing the same old thing day after day.

It is really no more monotonous for a man to come home every night than it is for him to go to the office every morning, and a woman can get just as tired of smearing her face with grease paint every night before she goes on the stage to act as she can of washing the baby's face or getting breakfast. All the pep we get in life we have to put into it ourselves, and if we would put as much thought and effort and be as alert and interested in trying to expand our home life and make it a success as we do in our business, and if we were as eager to get the glad hand from our husbands and wives as we are from the general public, we would not be so bored with matrimony.

If marriage is a failure, it is because we make it so. No other institution in the world would survive the rough treatment we give it.

Sister Mary's Kitchen

By SISTER MARY

Cool mornings make many mothers feel that children of school age should have a hot drink of some sort for breakfast. Coffee being taboo for growing boys and girls, just what to serve becomes more or less of a problem.

A cereal drink served with hot milk may appeal to older children, but young children from six to ten or twelve years of age need a drink containing more actual food value than the cereal beverage unless it is made wholly of milk.

Cocoa, which is really chocolate with some of the fat extracted, makes an excellent flavoring for the cup of hot milk suitable for the juniors' breakfast.

THEIR CHEMICAL ACTION

Although cocoa does contain a substance which is related to the caffeine in tea and coffee, when it is used merely as a flavoring for milk there is not enough of this substance present to cause any stimulating effect.

Cocoa itself contains fat, starch and protein, and when whole milk is used and sugar is added, the result is a drink of high food value, nourishing and wholesome.

Since cocoa contains starch, care must be taken in the making of the drink. Thorough cooking is necessary for the starch but undesirable for the milk, so it should not be added to the cocoa until this has been well cooked. The "skin" which sometimes forms on top of cocoa is the albumen of the milk coagulated by heat. Care in overheating the milk does much to prevent this. Beating with a duster after the milk is added increases the smoothness of the drink and removes the "skin" if the milk was allowed to scald.

Chocolate and cocoa may often be used interchangeably, but cocoa is easier to digest and makes a better beverage for children especially.

INDIVIDUAL COCOA FOR CHILDREN

Three-fourths teaspoon cocoa, two teaspoons sugar, two tablespoons boiling water, few grains salt, one cup milk.

Mix cocoa and sugar in a small saucepan. Add boiling water and cook and stir until a thick syrup. Add milk and salt and heat, but do not let scald. Stir constantly while heating. Serve at once.

Fuzzy-wuzzies

Appear in Film

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times

London, Oct. 14.—"The Four Feathers." A. E. W. Mason's story of the young officers who, branded by the presentation of white feathers when he finks his first war, resolves to make every one of his denouncers ask him for their return, has just appeared as a film.

The spectacle of a little British relief force annihilated by Fuzzy-Wuzzies and forming themselves into a hollow square for a fight which seems hopelessly lost, is one of the most thrilling episodes the screen has given us. We see the tribes riding up on their camels in numbers too vast to be counted. They sight the tiny relief force on its way through the pass. The fort they have come to save is still flying the flag, though we know that the defending colored troops are already in mutiny through lack of water.

Then comes the onrush of the tribesmen, and a fight which is a dazzling piece of clever film work. The hero rallies his mutineers, and a dash from the fort, with the killing of the Arab chief, puts the tribesmen to rout.

Another wonderful effect is a drive by a herd of hippopotami when the hero and the man he is rescuing are fleeing through the water from their enemies.

To-morrow's Horoscope

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1929

(Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate) Good and evil aspects are seen in the horoscope for to-day, according to astrology. It is a most unfavorable time for any sort of speculation.

The early morning is fortunate for most intellectual pursuits and should be lucky for professors in universities.

There is a fortunate direction of the stars for journeys, and the air lanes should be fairly safe for aviation.

It is rather an uncertain day for those who are on the high seas, for severe storms are to mark this month.

While the contraband provisions it is in a most suspicious for those who seek political preferment.

There is a sign of promise for all who search for the right niche in the business world. Men may be more lucky in securing good salaries than their women competitors.

The rule is promising for both men and women of high ambitions and successful achievement.

Large financial returns are to be realized by many persons who are employees of corporations, astrologers forecast.

Under this star the appearance of prosperity should be maintained and dress should be a matter of extreme interest, it is announced.

Because the power of suggestion is to be taken into consideration as never before, both men and women who desire success will cultivate the physical as well as the mental faculties that appeal.

Occultists prophesy the appearance before the end of the year of a supreme artist of the stage or the film.

Unsuspected powers of the mind and talents that have been dormant will be developed with scientific success, the seers prophesy.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year that should be fortunate for business or professional work. They will regret the tardiness of money and should not be borrowers.

Children born on this day probably will be hard-working and industrious. Many scholars are born under this sign.
